Reading Buchi Emecheta:

Reading Buchi Emecheta Katherine Fishburn, 1995-04-25 In this first full length study of Emecheta's fiction Fishburn highlights the difficulties inherent in reading across cultures She challenges the notion that all we need to understand African texts is a willingness to be open to them arguing that too many of the cultural and critical preconceptions we bring to these texts interfere with our ability to understand them Directly responding to Western feminist criticism written about Emecheta this study argues that Emecheta herself is not a feminist in the Western sense and that her novels should not be construed as reflecting this political interest In close readings of eight of her best known works this study reveals a complex narrative voice which is far more supportive of Emecheta's own African culture and its tradition than has been recognized previously

Reading Cultures Molly Abel Travis, 1998 Molly Abel Travis unites reader theory with an analysis of historical conditions and various cultural contexts in this discussion of the reading and reception of twentieth century literature in the United States Travis moves beyond such provisional conclusions as the text produces the reader or the reader produces the text and considers the ways twentieth century readers and texts attempt to constitute and appropriate each other at particular cultural moments and according to specific psychosocial exigencies She uses the overarching concept of the reader in and out of the text both to differentiate the reader implied by the text from the actual reader and to discuss such in and out movements that occur in the process of reading as the alternation between immersion and interactivity and between role playing and unmasking. Most reader theorists fix on the product of reading and exclude the process. Travis notes which means they necessarily focus on the text. Even theorists who argue for the reader's resistance make the text so determinant that they conceive of text and reader as discrete entities in a closed universe with these entities exerting force and counterforce respectively. Missing in these accounts are wave and field theories concerned with such dynamic and contrastive effects as changes in the art of literary reading over historical periods and differences among readers in the context of a cultural field. Travis seeks to fill gaps in current reader theories by focusing on process and difference. Unlike most reader theorists, Travis is concerned with the agency of the reader. Her conception of agency in reading is informed by performance, psychoanalytic and feminist theories. This agency involves compulsive reiterative performance in which readers attempt to find themselves by going outside the self engaging in literary role playing in the hope of finally and fully identifying the self through self differentiation. Furthermore, readers never escape a social context; they are both constructed and actively constructing in that they read as part of interpretive communities and are involved in collaborative creativity or what Kendall Walton calls collective imagining.

Encyclopedia of World Writers, 1800 to the Present Marie Diamond, 2020-07-01 In recent years schools have started introducing more inclusive syllabi emphasizing the works and ideas of previously overlooked or underrepresented writers. Readers of all ages can now explore the rich contributions of writers from around the world. These writers have various backgrounds and unlike most writers from the U.S. or the United Kingdom, information on them in English can be difficult to find. Encyclopedia of World Writers 1800 to the Present covers the most important writers outside of the U.S., Britain, and Ireland since 1800. More than 330 insightful A to Z entries profile novelists, poets, dramatists, and short story writers whose works are anthologized in textbooks or assigned in high school English classes. Entries range in length from 200 to 1,000 words each and include a biographical sketch, synopses of major works, and a brief bibliography. Dozens of entries are new to this edition, and many existing entries have been updated and significantly expanded with new Critical Analysis sections. Coverage includes Chinua Achebe, Margaret Atwood, Roberto Bolaño, Albert Camus, Khalid Hosseini, Victor Hugo, Mohammad Iqbal, Franz Kafka, Stieg Larsson, Mario Vargas Llosa, Naghib Mahfouz, Gabriel García Márquez, Kenzaburo Oe, Marcel Proust, Leo Tolstoy, Emile Zola, and more.

Feminism and Contemporary Women Writers Radha Chakravarty, 2014-05-30 This book attempts to deal with the problem of literary subjectivity in theory and practice. The works of six contemporary women writers, Doris Lessing, Anita Desai, Mahasweta Devi, Buchi Emecheta, Margaret Atwood, and Toni Morrison, are discussed as potential ways of testing and expanding the theoretical debate. A brief history of subjectivity and subject formation is reviewed in the light of the works of thinkers such as Hobbes, Hume, Kant, Hegel, Marx, Nietzsche, Raymond Williams, and Stephen Greenblatt, and the work of leading feminists is also seen contributing to the debate.

Literature After Feminism Rita Felski, 2003-07 Recent commentators have portrayed feminist critics as grim faced ideologues who are destroying the study of literature Feminists they claim reduce art to politics and are hostile to any form of aesthetic pleasure Literature after Feminism is the first work to comprehensively rebut such caricatures while also offering a clear eyed assessment of the relative merits of various feminist approaches to literature Spelling out her main arguments clearly and succinctly Rita Felski explains how feminism has changed the ways people read and think about literature She organizes her book around four key questions Do women and men read differently How have feminist critics imagined the female author What does plot have to do with gender And what do feminists have to say about the relationship between literary and political value Interweaving incisive commentary with literary examples Felski advocates a double critical vision that can do justice to the social and political meanings of literature without dismissing or scanting the aesthetic

Writing the Nation, 2022-05-20 The fourteen essays in this volume contribute significantly to a consideration of the interplay between nation and narration that currently dominates both literary and cultural studies With the fervent reassertion of tribal domains throughout the world and with the consequent threat to the stability of a common discourse in putative countries once mapped and subsequently dominated by colonizing powers the need for such studies becomes increasingly obvious Whose idea of a nation is to prevail throughout these postcolonial territories whose claims to speak for a people are to be legitimized by international agreement amid the demands of patriotic rhetoric what role may be allowed for individual expression that attempts to transcend the immediate political agenda who may assume positions of authority in defining an ethnic paradigm such are the questions variously addressed in this volume The essayists who here contribute to the discussion are students of the various national literatures that are now becoming more generally available in the West The range of topics is broad moving globally from the Caribbean and South America through the African continent and on to the Indian subcontinent and moving temporally through the nineteenth century and into the closing days of our twentieth We deal with poetry fiction and theoretical writings and have two types of reader in mind We hope to introduce the uninitiated to the breadth of this expanding field and we hope to aid those with a specialized knowledge of one or other of these literatures in their consideration of the extent to which post colonial writing may or may not form a reasonably unified field We seek to avoid the new form of colonialism that might impose a theoretical template to these quite divergent writings falsely rendering it all accessible and familiar At the same time we do note questions and concerns that cross borders whether these imagined lines are spatial temporal gendered or racial
