Suggestions for a Philosophical Reconstruction Ernest Belfort Bax, 1892 Culture and Media Rayson K. Alex, S. Susan Deborah, Sachindev P.S., 2014-06-19 Indian ecocriticism has not yet adequately demonstrated the applicability of ecological deep ecological tinai principles to visual texts Culture and Media Ecocritical Explorations closes this gap at the most opportune moment Though this volume accommodates ecologically oriented interpretations from several cultures across the world it reserves the centre stage for Indian ecocriticism and ecotheory quite appropriately The volume effectively challenges the major documents on ecocriticism and theory published by international presses which have been reluctant to give space to tinai criticism and theory that transcend Dravidian or Tamil boundaries The day is not far when cinema of the world shaped by tinai theory will employ tinai hermeneutics to gain fresh insight which in turn will feed into the processes of creation and production of relevant and great movies Presidential Directive on the Use of Polygraphs and Prepublication Review United States. Congress. House. Committee on the Judiciary. Subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights, 1985 Must We Kill the Thing We Love? William Rothman, 2014-03-25 William Rothman argues that the driving force of Hitchcock's work was his struggle to reconcile the dark vision of his favorite Oscar Wilde quote 'Each man kills the thing he loves' with the quintessentially American philosophy articulated in Emerson's writings that gave classical Hollywood movies of the New Deal era their extraordinary combination of popularity and artistic seriousness. A Hitchcock thriller could be a comedy of remarriage or a melodrama of an unknown woman; both Emersonian genres except for the murderous villain and godlike author Hitchcock, who pulls the villain's strings and ours. Because Hitchcock believed that the camera has a murderous aspect, the question 'What if anything justifies killing?' which every Hitchcock film engages was for him a disturbing question about his own art. Tracing the trajectory of Hitchcock's career, Rothman discerns a progression in the films' meditations on murder and artistic creation. This progression culminates in Marnie (1964), Hitchcock's most controversial film in which Hitchcock overcame his ambivalence and fully embraced the Emersonian worldview he had always also resisted. Reading key Emerson passages with the degree of attention he accords to Hitchcock sequences, Rothman discovers surprising affinities between Hitchcock's way of thinking cinematically and the philosophical way of thinking Emerson's essays exemplify. He finds that the terms in which Emerson thought about reality, about our flux of moods, about what it is within us that never changes, about freedom, about America, about reading, about writing, and about thinking are remarkably pertinent to our experience of films and to thinking and writing about them. He also reflects on the implications of this discovery not only for Hitchcock scholarship but also for film criticism in general.

Understanding World Order and Structural Change H. Abrahamsson, 2015-12-22 Hans Abrahamsson assesses the current world order and structural change within an historical framework. He analyzes the interaction of Pax Americana and the Bretton Woods system in the postwar period and its impact specifically on the development of Southern Africa. The author also proposed an analytical model and a methodological framework for the study of the international political economy and its global and local implications. Finally, he addresses the circumstances behind the current opportunity for global change and the social forces and political action required in order to seize it.
