Remembering Atlantis The History Of The World:

Remembering Atlantis Daniel R. Condrón, Barbara Condrón, 2002 Every Dream is about the Dreamer Barbara Condrón, 2004 Do other people dream about the same things you do Can dreams be a premonition Or a glimpse of some other dimension How can your child's dreams help you be a better parent What were your childhood dreams trying to tell you Why does the same dream repeat itself again and again Why do we wish some dreams would never end Since www.dreamschool.org became a presence on the Internet thousands of people from around the world have sent emails about their dreams The questions they ask are universal in much the same way as the dreams themselves are These correspondences reveal the common themes that run through our dreams and what they mean Once decoded they become personal mythologies revealing individual quests for success enlightenment and peace For decades students and teachers at the School of Metaphysics have studied dreams as a gateway into nocturnal consciousness Atlantis, the Book of the Angels D. History of the Literary Cultures of East-Central Europe Marcel Cornis-Pope, John Neubauer, 2010-09-29 Types and stereotypes is the fourth and last volume of a path breaking multinational literary history that incorporates innovative features relevant to the writing of literary history in general. Instead of offering a traditional chronological narrative of the period 1800-1989, the History of the Literary Cultures of East Central Europe approaches the region's literatures from five complementary angles: focusing on literature's participation in and reaction to key political events; literary periods and genres; the literatures of cities and sub-regions; literary institutions and figures of representation. The main objective of the project is to challenge the self-enclosure of national literatures in traditional literary histories, to contextualize them in a regional perspective, and to recover individual works, writers, and minority literatures that national histories have marginalized or ignored. Types and stereotypes brings together articles that rethink the figures of National Poets, figurations of the Family, Women, Outlaws, and Others, as well as figures of Trauma and Mediation. As in the previous three volumes, the historical and imaginary figures discussed here constantly change and readjust to new political and social conditions. An Epilogue complements the basic history, focusing on the contradictory transformations of East Central European literary cultures after 1989. This volume will be of interest to the region's literary historians, to students and teachers of comparative literature, to cultural historians, and to the general public interested in exploring the literatures of a rich and resourceful cultural region.

A Ticket to Freedom Bob Lovelock, 2011. A Ticket to Freedom: Your License to Be Different is a book that was many years in the making. I was a very successful professional person, but gradually I found that success was not coupled to happiness. In 2003 I experienced a revelation that changed me completely. I didn't know what had occurred, but I couldn't deny it. Ever since I seem to have been on a path of discovery and enlightenment. I know today I am a completely different person to the version of me that existed in 2003. Author Bob Lovelock's epiphany changed his life forever. He writes in simple language about something beyond comprehension: for most, the conception, creation, and purpose of the universe. Space, time, energy, and the three parts of man are exposed to show a drama created by the designer of life to give an illusion of life that would benefit another existence in another dimension. A Ticket to Freedom is a life changer. Are you daring enough to be different? About the Author: Bob Lovelock used to design and build large construction products. Originally from Watford, England, today he lives with his wife Sharon on a small farm in France with only the barest necessities. He is working on his next book.
