positively correlated with churches structured upon a self selected authoritarian hierarchial style of leadership versus an elected collegial style of church leadership In the latter power and authority is equally vested in each of a number of elected church leaders The results of this survey suggest the possibility of a positive correlation between the self selected minister group and their responses to religious addictive beliefs and symptoms Further study of a prospective nature with larger samples is necessary to define this relationship more clearly Additional research with onsite observation and assessments is necessary to adequately verify the possible link between religious addiction and church leadership practices Future research must replicate this study with different samples to determine whether results obtained in the present survey generalize to similar groups

Huguelet, Harold G. Koenig, 2009-03-30 Although medicine is practised in a secular setting religious and spiritual issues have an impact on patient perspectives regarding their health and the management of any disorders that may afflict them This is especially true in psychiatry as feelings of spirituality and religiousness are very prevalent among the mentally ill Clinicians are rarely aware of the importance of religion and understand little of its value as a mediating force for coping with mental illness This book addresses various issues concerning mental illness in psychiatry the relation of religious issues to mental health the tension between a theoretical approach to problems and psychiatric approaches the importance of addressing these varying approaches in patient care and how to do so and differing ways to approach Christian Muslim and Buddhist patients
