Changes Between the Lines Doris Stolberg, 2015-08-17. The book investigates the diachronic dimension of contact induced language change based on empirical data from Pennsylvania German (PG) a variety of German in long term contact with English. Written data published in local print media from Pennsylvania USA between 1868 and 1992 are analyzed with respect to semantic changes in the argument structure of verbs the use of impersonal constructions word order changes in subordinate clauses and in prepositional phrase constructions. The research objective is to trace language change based on diachronic empirical data and to assess whether existing models of language contact make provisions to cover the long term developments found in PG. The focus of the study is thus twofold first it provides a detailed analysis of selected semantic and syntactic changes in Pennsylvania German and second it links the empirical findings to theoretical approaches to language contact. Previous investigations of PG have drawn a more or less static rather than dynamic picture.

of this contact variety The present study explores how the dynamics of language contact can bring about language mixing borrowing and eventually language change taking into account psycholinguistic processes in the head of the bilingual speaker tried to document the fact that the way you respond to the perception of the unseen can very much be extended or expanded through other far easier more comfortably active logical sets already present in you creating thus a useful stress free relation between you and the riddling awe for the unseen The book has tried to search how the prefixed factors can be seen waiting to be unravelled and accepted with some interesting flexibility of reasonings Which ultimately should help develop the very sense that the tenet of destiny does no way encourage man s limitational thought for life world or himself
