MIND and LOVE: The Human Experience Lloyd

Fell, 2011-01-04 The new scientific paradigm of embodied mind or situated cognition is percolating into popular mind science but its fundamentals autopoiesis and structural coupling have never been thoroughly explained Combines the paradigm shift in biology initiated by Maturana and Varela with the recent rush of ideas in social neuroscience to create what hopes to be a refreshingly new explanation of the way our mind works in our everyday experience and reveals the most common blind spots in what we thought we knew about our mind These blind spots are spoiling our individual lives and harming our prospects for peaceful coexistence and care of our environment e g the mistaken ideas that meaning is transferable that decisions come from conscious awareness or that knowledge is a commodity The biological significance of love and the value of embracing uncertainty and respecting the unknown point to a very hopeful vision for our future This is a scientific explanation of mind leavened with process philosophy also invoking spirituality without any religious connotation Love I.

Dilman, 2016-01-13 The book is concerned with questions about love questions about its many forms strands and aspects and the relation in which they stand to each other It is concerned with the way different aspects of sexual love conflict with each other with the way self regard and self interest can corrupt love and with spiritual love and its difficulties It seeks the views of some writers who have suggested some distinctive solutions to the existential problems that love poses in the face of its obstacles Plato Proust Sartre Freud D H Lawrence Erich Fromm C S Lewis Kierkegaard Simone Weil and Kahlil Gibran

The Model of Love Vincent Brümmer, 1993-09-16 Religious believers understand the meaning of their lives and of the world in terms of the way these are related to God The conceptual models whereby this relationship is described therefore play a key role in the conceptual designs which theologians produce to express the faith of the community of believers Vincent Brümmer examines the implications of using the model of love in this context and looks at a number of the most significant views of the nature of love exclusive attention Ortega y Gasset ecstatic union nuptial mysticism passionate suffering courtly love need love Plato Augustine and gift love Nygren All these views are shown to interpret love as an attitude rather than as a relation between persons In the final chapters a relational concept of love is developed and it is shown how all the various attitudes discussed in the previous chapters have a role to play Finally the implications are addressed of using the model of love as a key model in theology Love Simon May, 2019-03-28 What is love's real intent

Why can love be so ruthlessly selective How is it related to sex beauty and goodness And is the child now the supreme object of love In addressing these questions Simon May develops a radically new understanding of love as the emotion we feel towards whomever or whatever we experience as grounding our life as offering us a possibility of home in a world that we supremely value He sees love as motivated by a promise of ontological rootedness rather than as two thousand years of tradition variously asserts by beauty or goodness by a search for wholeness by virtue by sexual or reproductive desire by compassion or altruism or empathy or in one of today's dominant views by no qualities at all of the loved one. After arguing that such founding Western myths as the Odyssey and Abraham's call by God to Canaan in the Bible powerfully exemplify his new conception of love, May goes on to re-examine the relation of love to beauty, sex and goodness in the light of this conception, offering among other things a novel theory of beauty and suggesting against Plato that we can love others for their ugliness while also seeing them as beautiful. Finally he proposes that in the Western world romantic love is gradually giving way to parental love as the most valued form of love, namely the love without which one's life is not deemed complete or truly flourishing. May explains why childhood has become sacred and excellence in parenting a paramount ideal as well as a litmus test of society's moral health. In doing so he argues that the child is the first genuinely modern supreme object of love, the first to fully reflect what Nietzsche called the death of God. Readers will find Love Excitingly new yet immediately recognizable that's the paradox at the very heart of love and it is what Simon May has achieved. Los Angeles Review of Books

The Christian Message as Vision and Mission Santiago Sia, 2017-08-21 With all the messages that come our way through social media and in sophisticated gadgets, does the Christian message of love, hope and redemption still have an importance and relevance? What does it have to offer to enable us to meet the various challenges which beset present-day living? Today there is an even greater and more urgent need to focus on it. After all, the Christian message is not merely information because it is also about a way of life. Neither is it simply an exhortation since it also presents a definite goal. This book provides some philosophical considerations which underpin its central teaching. While aware of its richness and complexity, the essays concentrate on the Christian message insofar as it provides a vision for humanity and articulates a mission to implement it. The book serves to establish points of encounter rather than points of departure in order to contribute to the ongoing reflection by those who believe in that message as well as to the debates with those who oppose it. Judaism Is

About Love Shai Held, 2024-03-26 A profound, startling new understanding of Jewish life illuminating the forgotten heart of Jewish theology and practice. Love: A dramatic misinterpretation of the Jewish tradition has shaped the history of the West. Christianity is the religion of love and Judaism the religion of law. In the face of centuries of this widespread misrepresentation, Rabbi Shai Held, one of the most important Jewish thinkers in America today, recovers the heart of the Jewish tradition, offering the radical and moving argument that love belongs as much to Judaism as it does to Christianity. Blending intellectual rigor, a respect for tradition and the practices of a living Judaism, and a commitment to the full equality of all people, Held seeks to reclaim Judaism as it authentically is. He shows that love is foundational and constitutive of true Jewish faith, animating the singular Jewish perspective on injustice and protest, grace, family, life, responsibilities to our neighbors and even our enemies, and chosenness. Ambitious and revelatory, Judaism Is About Love illuminates the true essence of Judaism: an act of restoration from within. Cosmopolitan Love and Individuality Nigel Rapport, 2018-11-23

Love discovers the reality of individual human beings, wrote Iris Murdoch. Love deifies the person, wrote Ralph Waldo Emerson.

This book proposes love as a kind of civic virtue that loving recognition might function as a universal form of ethical engagement and inclusion. Loving recognition is proposed as a civil practice that enshrines the individuality of human identity, overcoming the labels and classes of ethnicity, nationality, religiosity, and social status. A particular understanding of love is suggested. Love as civic virtue is described as a complex comprising emotional attraction to a human being together with discernment of the individual specificity of that human being and also respect for that specificity in a loving engagement. The individuality of the other person is let be given the space to subsist and encouraged to fulfil itself. Who is this beloved other human being? It is Anyone. Loving recognition is universalizing. It not only insists on a human species wide commonality that supervenes upon the ways in which we habitually classify the world according to invented categories such as people's supposed belonging to national or ethnic or religious or economic or cultural groups and classes, it also insists on recognizing Anyone, the globally common individual human being, and including Anyone within a universalizing loving practice. This book places its faith in love because of the motivating force that love delivers. Love's emotional engagement is such as to individuate the beloved in themselves as themselves and for themselves. The force of love overcomes the habit of seeing the world through a society's and a culture's conventional classificatory lens. Love delivers a kind of epiphany, a moment of vision such that the other human being does not appear as representative of a social category or class but is rightfully appreciated as being in possession of a unique and precious individual life.

Alienation and Identity in Romantic Love

Gary Foster, 2024-08-06. The concept of romantic love influenced as it is by the theme within Romanticism of alienation and identification suggests an important connection between love and personal identity. Love in this context recognizes both the sense in which one's beloved is a separate human being and is at the same time a constitutive aspect of one's identity. Alienation and Identity in Romantic Love explores this connection in the context of discussions of both metaphysical views of personal identity and practical or ethical accounts. To this end, Gary Foster discusses the work of influential philosophers in both the analytic and continental traditions as well as the findings of sociologists. He explores the love and personal identity relationship through moral and narrative perspectives and examines certain aspects of the modern love experience such as the phenomenon of online dating. Ultimately, Foster finds in Jean-Paul Sartre's work a promising approach to understanding this connection through his emphasis on embodied identity.

Love's Vision

Troy Jollimore, 2011-07-05. Love often seems uncontrollable and irrational but we just as frequently appear to have reasons for loving the people we do. In Love's Vision, Troy Jollimore offers a new way of understanding love that accommodates both of these facts, arguing that love is guided by reason even as it resists and sometimes eludes rationality. At the same time, he reconsiders love's moral status, acknowledging its moral dangers while arguing that it is at heart a moral phenomenon, an emotion that demands empathy and calls us away from excessive self-concern. Love is revealed as neither wholly moral nor deeply immoral, neither purely rational nor profoundly irrational. Rather, as Diotima says in Plato's Symposium, love is something in between. Jollimore makes his case by proposing a vision view of love according to which loving is a way of seeing that involves bestowing charitable attention on a loved one This view recognizes the truth in the cliché love is blind but holds that love's blindness does not undermine the idea that love is guided by reason Reasons play an important role in love even if they rest on facts that are not themselves rationally justifiable Filled with illuminating examples from literature Love's Vision is an original examination of a subject of vital philosophical and human concern

Because God Is Love: Understanding the Love of God and Why It Is the Only Path to Life Fersen Perera, 2015-01-20 The only path to life not mere survival for a human being is the love of God But what is love There are many definitions of this short word and even more opinions about its meaning There are also those who say that there are different types of love However Scripture simply states that God is Love and that love comes from God so why is there such confusion about love Part I of Because God Is Love exposes the passionate and alluring yet deceptive reasons behind this confusion of meaning brings forth the simple truth about love in its human facet and shows how everything else that has been called love is nothing other than a delusion that is akin to idolatry and as such it is destructive and completely removed from the true love of the Lord our God The only power that redeems fulfills and provides meaning to the existence of those who wholeheartedly love Him
