

A Scot Goes South

The background of the entire image is a photograph of a rock wall covered in ancient handprints. The handprints are in various shades of ochre, red, and white. In the foreground, a black silhouette of a person is shown from the waist up, facing away from the viewer and pointing their right index finger towards one of the handprints on the wall. The person's left hand is held open and flat, palm facing forward. The overall scene suggests a connection between the modern traveler and the ancient inhabitants of the region.
