During the early 19th century the British came in direct contact with the Baloch first with those living in the Punjab and Sind and later with those in Balochistan proper Soon after their arrival in the region they began studying the Baloch as an ethno national group their language literature folklore tribal structure physical features and so on forming theories and suggesting hypotheses regarding their origins and relations with other nations and peoples While some maintained that the Baloch originated from north western Iran others believed they came from Central Asia from Arabia or from else where 1 Among the early British writers some also opined that while some tribes might have a foreign origin bulk of the Baloch were the autochthonous population of the country With the passage of time however other theories were abandoned and a northwest Iranian origin came to be the widely accepted one This thesis was established on three basic grounds first from the Balochi oral tradition which claims that the Baloch came from a place called Alab Alap identified as Aleppo in Syria by Western writers and later followed by some lo cal writers too secondly their mention in the Shahnameh of Ferdowsi where they are sometimes shown along with the people of Gilan and Dilam regions situated on the Caspian Sea regions and thirdly on the basis of their language which is classified as belonging to the northwestern group of Iranian languages having close affinities with Kurdish and other languages of that branch Narrative of a Journey to Kalât, Including an Insurrection at that Place in 1840
