The New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) is the world's largest stock exchange, with more than 80% of the S&P 500 and 70 of the world's top companies listed. It is a publicly-traded organization that allows for daily buying and sale, including more than nine million industrial stocks and securities.

The New York Stock Exchange is the world's most influential and busiest financial market. Investors all across the globe trade its stocks.

History of NYSE

In 1817, it was formally established as the New York Stock and Exchange Board. In 1863, the current name was chosen. Greater economic activity in the United States following the War of 1812, as well as railroad stock speculation in the 1830s, boosted demand for capital and boosted trading at the exchange.

Following the panic of 1837, when many investors lost a lot of money, the exchange started requiring corporations to disclose financial information to the public as a condition of selling stock. The city of New York declared bankruptcy in the early 1970s, and the music industry moved west, focusing on Los Angeles.
