Food Security, Nutrition and Sustainability Through Aquaculture Technologies Jitendra Kumar Sundaray,Mohd Ashraf Rather,Ishtiyag Ahmad,Adnan Amin,2024-12-31 Aquaculture is the farming of aquatic organisms such as fish crustaceans mollusks and aquatic plants It is a rapidly growing industry that plays a significant role in providing food security improving nutrition and promoting sustainability Food security is a major global concern with millions of people around the world suffering from malnutrition and hunger Food security nutrition and sustainability are global challenges that need urgent attention to achieve a better and more sustainable future Aquaculture technologies can help to address this problem by increasing the availability and accessibility of fish and other aquatic foods providing a source of protein rich food improving nutrition enhancing sustainability generating income and improving food safety In addition aquaculture technologies play an important role in promoting nutrition Fish and other aquatic foods are a good source of essential nutrients that are important for human health including omega 3 fatty acids vitamin D and minerals like iron and zinc By increasing access to these foods aquaculture can help to improve nutrition and reduce the incidence of diet related diseases Fish and shellfish are rich in omega 3 fatty acids which have been linked to improved heart health brain function and other health benefits By incorporating fish and shellfish into their diets people can improve their overall nutritional intake and reduce the risk of chronic diseases Food Security Nutrition and Sustainability Through Aquaculture Technologies shines a light on how aquaculture technologies contribute to sustainability by providing a more efficient and environmentally friendly way of producing food Compared to traditional fishing practices aquaculture can reduce pressure on wild fish populations and minimize the negative impact of fishing on marine ecosystems Additionally advances in aquaculture technology have led to the development of more sustainable and efficient production systems including recirculating aquaculture systems and integrated multi trophic aquaculture As the global population continues to grow demand for protein rich foods like fish is increasing Aquaculture provides a sustainable way to meet this demand as it can produce more protein per unit of feed than traditional livestock farming This book discusses aquaculture practiced in areas where traditional agriculture is not feasible such as regions that are unsuitable for crop production In addition to providing a source of protein aquaculture can also improve nutrition Aquaculture can be practiced in a sustainable manner with minimal impact on the environment Unlike traditional fishing which can deplete wild fish populations and damage marine ecosystems aquaculture allows for the controlled cultivation of fish and other aquatic organisms Properly managed aquaculture operations can also minimize waste and pollution and can even contribute to ecosystem restoration by providing habitat for marine species This book includes chapters on various aspects of aquaculture technologies that address a range of important global challenges including food security nutrition and sustainability and are likely to play an increasingly important role in meeting the world's growing demand for food

Ongoing Research in Jawed Fish Immunity: Structural and Functional Studies at the Protein and Cellular Levels
Monica Imarai,Brian Dixon,2020-06-04 Knowledge of jawed fish immune systems obtained in the last 15 years has been mostly obtained through the sequencing of genomes of different fish species and from the use of high throughput techniques such as transcriptomic analysis and RNA sequencing which has allowed characterization of immune gene responses at the transcriptomic level Although these have been important tools for exploring the complexities of the immune responses of fish species the next generation of knowledge requires the use of new tools and methods capable of unveiling the diversity of immune cells and molecules in jawed fish the network of interactions and responses and the mechanisms leading to immune protection against pathogens For more than 10 years many laboratories have been engaged in developing antibodies against key molecules of jawed fish immune systems in several different species because the lack of sequence conservation of most immune genes makes it impossible to use the large panel of antibodies against mammalian molecules for recognition of fish molecules The numerous genes encoding cytokines and receptors have now been used to make recombinant proteins available allowing studies of the complex network of cytokine and receptor functions central to fish immune responses From many laboratories new and interesting knowledge about immune cells their functions and interactions can be studied with the availability of new tools and methods have begun to provide a clear understanding fish immunity at the protein and cellular levels This Research Topic gives a comprehensive overview of the current knowledge of jawed fish immune responses with a particular emphasis on structural and functional studies at the protein and cellular levels
