Representing Women:

Representing Women Linda Nochlin, 1999 Women as warriors workers mothers sensual women even absent women haunt nineteenth and twentieth century Western painting This book brings together Linda Nochlin's most important and pioneering writings on the representation of women in art as she considers works by Millet Delacroix Courbet Degas Seurat Cassatt and Kollwitz among many others In a riveting partly autobiographical introduction Nochlin argues for the honest virtues of an art history that rejects methodological presuppositions and for art historians who investigate the work before their eyes while focusing on its subject matter informed by a sensitivity to its feminist spirit Representing Women Beth Reingold, 2003-07-11 Women in public office are often assumed to make a difference for women as women in other words to represent their female constituents better than do their male counterparts But is sex really an accurate predictor of a legislator's political choices and actions In this book Beth Reingold compares the representational activities and attitudes of male and female members of the Arizona and California state legislatures to illuminate the broader implications of the election and integration of women into public office In the process she challenges many of the assumptions that underlie popular expectations of women and men in politics Using in depth interviews survey responses and legislative records Reingold actually uncovers more similarities between female and male politicians than differences Moreover the stories she presents strongly suggest that rather than assuming that who our representatives are determines what they will do in office we must acknowledge the possibility that the influence of gender on legislative behavior can be weakened distorted or accentuated by powerful forces within the social and political contexts of elective office Representing Women?

Mercedes Mateo Diaz, 2024-10-31 This work discusses questions on political participation representation and legitimacy in the European Union national parliaments Three major empirical questions structure the book What affects women's presence in parliaments Does the number of women in parliament have an effect And are women in parliament representing women Empirical evidences show that institutional reforms need a minimal environment in terms of socio economic development so as to prove effective As opposed to the critical mass theory claiming that a few representatives cannot have an impact on the political outcomes here the empirical evidences suggest that smaller groups can also influence the different components of the legislative process The last part turns to the fundamental question of whether a parliament that is descriptively representative i.e. in which the parliamentarians share certain characteristics with the voters also is a substantively descriptive parliament i.e. in which the parliamentarians mirror the voters opinions Evidence suggests that the electoral system's level of proportionality influences the extent to which assemblies socially and ideologically mirror their population The book ends by advancing new hypotheses and setting up guidelines for future research Representing Women in Parliament Marian Sawer, Manon Tremblay, Linda Trimble, 2006-09-27 The first book length treatment of the political representation of women in countries with parliamentary systems based on the Westminster model Written by a major international team of authors this new study features twelve chapters on both new and established parliaments including Australia Canada New Zealand and the United Kingdom It tests the latest theories about women s political representation within Westminster style assemblies and is organized into three key sections that examine the extent to which the descriptive representation of women in the old Westminster parliaments has progressed in recent years and the factors which have enhanced or impeded development explore the relationship between the numbers of women elected and the substantive representation of women or the extent that women act for women review the recent experiences of four new Westminster parliaments Northern Ireland Scotland Wales and Nunavut and evaluate the political opportunities for women provided by the creation of new institutions This new comparative study will be of great interest to students and researchers of legislative studies and of gender politics and gender studies

Representing Women Susan Sage Heinzelman,1994 This anthology explores the provocative intersection between feminist literary and legal theories Written by feminist thinkers from law and literature discourses that each produce culturally powerful representations of women these essays contest the boundaries that usually separate these disciplines and thereby alter the possibilities of those representations that have traditionally disempowered women Beginning with an exploration of the ways in which women are represented how they either tell or have their stories told in literature in the law in a courtroom this collection demonstrates the interrelatedness of the legal and the literary Whether considering the status of medieval women readers or assessing the effectiveness and extent of contemporary rape law reform the essays show that power first comes with telling one s own story and that the degree and effect of that power are determined by the cultural significance of the forum in which the story is presented But telling the story is not enough One must also be aware of how the story is contained within traditional constructs or boundaries and is thus limited in its effects as Carol Sanger s essay on mothers and legal sexual identity makes clear One must also recognize how a story might perpetuate an ideological agenda that is not in the best interests of the storyteller as Elizabeth Butler Cullingford shows in her reading of Yeats s Leda and the Swan and one must know the historical context of a story and of its telling as Anne B Goldstein s essay on lesbian narratives discloses Breaking down the boundaries between law and literature this anthology makes evident the ways in which the effect of women s stories has been constrained and expands the range of possibilities for those who represent women tell women s stories or present women s issues Representing Women makes the retelling of old stories about women compelling and the telling of new ones both necessary and possible Contributors Kathryn Abrams Linda Brodkey Rita Copeland Elizabeth Butler Cullingford Margaret Anne Doody Susan B Estrich Michelle Fine Anne B Goldstein Angela P Harris Susan Sage Heinzelman Christine L Krueger Martha Minow Carol Sanger Judy Scales Trent

What Women Represent Erica Rayment, 2024-05-07 Political equity advocates and academics often argue that we must elect more women but what difference does it make if we do What Women Represent shows that women can and do influence the issues raised and the decisions made in parliamentary debate and decision making Using a new framework for thinking about what it means for legislators to represent women and drawing on a database that encompasses five decades of debate in the House of Commons Erica Rayment investigates which members of Parliament represent women and what issues they address She then examines the role women parliamentarians played in two instances where governments threatened to curtail previous gender equality gains the Mulroney government s attempted recriminalization of abortion and the Harper government s plans to cut funding and weaken the mandate of Status of Women Canada Rayment s analysis decisively shows that parliamentary presence matters for the representation of women s interests women MPs regardless of party are more likely to act for women and play a critical role when the rights of women are at stake What Women Represent is the first large scale analysis of the substantive representation of women in Canadian politics adding depth and nuance to our understanding of issues of gender in parliamentary institutions

Substantive Representation of Women in Asian Parliaments Devin K. Joshi,Christian Echle,2022-08-03 Combining data from nearly 100 interviews with national parliamentarians from ten Asian countries the contributors to this book analyze and evaluate the advancement of gender equality in Asia As of the year 2022 no country in Asia has gender parity in its parliament Meanwhile the proportion of national level women parliamentarians in Asia averages a mere 20% What is more important than simple descriptive representation however is whether outcomes for women are improving Rather than focusing on numerical representation the chapters in this book focus on the substantive representation of women In other words what do women and men parliamentarians do to advance women s well being and gender equality Using semi structured interviews the author of each chapter examines these efforts in the context of a specific Asian country The case studies include Bangladesh Indonesia Japan Malaysia Nepal the Philippines South Korea Sri Lanka Taiwan and Timor Leste The book is an essential resource for scholars and students of Asian politics and the politics of gender

The Mixed Member Proportional System: Providing Greater Representation for Women? Tracy-Ann Johnson-Myers,2016-11-16 This Brief discusses the adoption of the mixed member proportional MMP electoral system in New Zealand and its subsequent effect on representation for women Concerns about the homogeneity of the legislature under the Single Member Plurality electoral system and the need for increased representativeness and greater proportionality of party preference lead to the changeover in 1996 The book addresses the question of whether an increase in descriptive representation for women in New Zealand's House of Representatives has translated to policy outcomes that are beneficial to them It also examines the extent to which female MPs meet the expectation that they will act for members of their groups pushing minority and gender friendly legislation and policies into the political arena Finally it raises questions about where women are found in New Zealand's decision making bodies and what influence they might have on policy outcomes The first book to examine the effects of the MMP system on female descriptive and substantive representation using a case study analysis this Brief adds to the literature on electoral systems and women's political representation This book will be of use to political science students at both the undergraduate and graduate level particularly those interested in electoral studies political institutions politics and gender and minority representation

Protest, Policy, and the Problem of Violence against Women S. Laurel Weldon, 2013-12-09 Violence against women is one of the most insidious social ills facing the world today Yet governmental response is inconsistent ranging from dismissal to aggressive implementation of policies and programs to combat the problem In her comparative study of thirty six democratic governments Laurel Weldon examines the root causes and consequences of the differences in public policy from Northern Europe to Latin America She reveals that factors that often influence the development of social policies do not determine policies on violence against women Neither economic level religion region nor the number of women in government determine governmental responsiveness to this problem Weldon demonstrates for example that Nordic governments take no more action to combat violence against women than Latin American governments even though the Swedish welfare state is often considered a leader in social policy particularly with regard to women's issues Instead the presence of independently organized active women's movements plays a greater role in placing violence against women on the public agenda The breadth and scope of governmental response is greatly enhanced by the presence of an office dedicated to promoting women's status Weldon closes with practical lessons and insights to improve government action on violence against women and other important issues of social justice and democracy
