Transforming Research Methods in the Social Sciences Angelo Flynn,Sherianne Kramer,2019-03-01 A look at the research methods in development across the global South Social science researchers in the global South and in South Africa particularly utilise research methods in innovative ways in order to respond to contexts characterised by diversity racial and political tensions socioeconomic disparities and gender inequalities These methods often remain undocumented a gap that this book starts to address Written by experts from various methodological fields Transforming Research Methods in the Social Sciences is a comprehensive collation of original essays and cutting edge research that demonstrates the variety of novel techniques and research methods available to researchers responding to these context bound issues It is particularly relevant for study and research in the fields of applied psychology sociology ethnography biography and anthropology In addition to their unique combination of conceptual and application issues the chapters also include discussions on ethical considerations relevant to the method in similar global South contexts Transforming Research Methods in the Social Sciences has much to offer to researchers professionals and others involved in social science research both locally and internationally

Urban Public Health Gina S. Lovasi,Ana V. Diez Roux,Jennifer Kolker,2020-09-10 Today we know cities as shared spaces with the potential to both threaten and promote human health while urban areas are known to amplify the transmission of epidemics like Ebola urban residency is also associated with longer healthier lives Modern cities encompass a wide ecology of infrastructures institutions and services that impact health from access to improved sanitation and early childhood education to the design of buildings and transportation systems So how has this centuries long transformation in human settlement affected the mindset surrounding public health research and practice Urban Public Health is an interdisciplinary collaboration from experts across the globe that approaches the issue of urban health research from a uniquely public health orientation The carefully crafted and thoughtful chapters in this volume grapple with the complexity of the urban setting as a physical and social space while also providing an abundance of global and local examples of current urban health practices Urban Public Health is divided into four pragmatic sections which cover core conceptual models of public health and their inequities methods of urban health research assessment methods of urban health research analysis and explanation and ultimately opportunities for urban health research to inform action through partnership and collaboration including those which elevate community voices and capacities An accessible guide for both students and researchers alike Urban Public Health shines a light on how to understand measure and change the urban setting so that cities grow people thrive and no one is left behind

Spatial Analysis in Health Geography Pavlos Kanaroglou,Eric Delmelle,2016-03-09 Presenting current research on spatial epidemiology this book covers topics such as exposure chronic disease infectious disease accessibility to health care settings and new methods in Geographical Information Science and Systems For epidemiologists and for the management and administration of health care settings it is critical to understand the spatial dynamics of disease. For instance it is crucial that hospital administrators develop an understanding of the flow of patients over time especially during an outbreak of a particular disease so they can plan for appropriate levels of staffing and to carry out adaptive prevention measures. Furthermore understanding where and why a disease occurs at a certain geographic location is vital for decision makers to formulate policy to increase the accessibility to health services either by prevention or adding new facilities. Spatial epidemiology relies increasingly on new methodologies such as clustering algorithms visualization and space time modelling the domain of Geographic Information Science. Implementation of those techniques appears at an increasing pace in commercial Geographic Information Systems alongside more traditional techniques that are already part of such systems. This book provides the latest methods in GI Science and their use in health related problems.

The Sustainable City IX N. Marchettini, C.A. Brebbia, R. Pulselli, S. Bastianoni, 2014-09-23. Containing the proceedings of the 9th International Conference on Urban Regeneration and Sustainability this book addresses the multi disciplinary aspects of urban planning a result of the increasing size of cities the amount of resources and services required and the complexity of modern society. Most of earth's population now lives in cities and the process of urbanisation still continues generating many problems deriving from the drift of the population towards them. These problems can be resolved by cities becoming efficient habitats saving resources in a way that improves the quality and standard of living. The process however faces a number of major challenges related to reducing pollution improving main transportation and infrastructure systems. New urban solutions are required to optimise the use of space and energy resources leading to improvements in the environment i.e. reduction in air water and soil pollution as well as efficient ways to deal with waste generation. These challenges contribute to the development of social and economic imbalances and require the development of new solutions. Large cities are probably the most complex mechanisms to manage. However despite such complexity they represent a fertile ground for architects engineers city planners social and political scientists and other professionals able to conceive new ideas and time them according to technological advances and human requirements. The challenge of planning sustainable cities lies in considering their dynamics the exchange of energy and matter and the function and maintenance of ordered structures directly or indirectly supplied and maintained by natural systems. Topics covered include Urban strategies Planning development and management Urban conservation and regeneration The community and the city Eco town planning Landscape planning and design Environmental management Sustainable energy and the city Transportation Quality of life Waterfront development Case studies Architectural issues Cultural heritage issues Intelligent environment and emerging technologies Planning for risk Disaster and emergency response Safety and security Waste management Infrastructure and society Urban metabolism.
