Development Research is a comprehensive introduction to research in development studies that provides thorough training for anyone carrying out research in developing countries. It brings together experts with extensive experience of overseas research presenting an interdisciplinary guide to the core methodologies. Informed by years of research experience, Doing Development Research draws together many strands of action research and participatory methods demonstrating their diverse applications and showing how they interrelate. The text provides an account of the theoretical approaches that underlie development work, an explanation of the practical issues involved in planning development research, a systematic overview of information and data collecting methods in three sub-sections: methods of social research and associated forms of analysis; using existing knowledge and records; disseminating findings. Research using clear and uncomplicated language illustrated with appropriate learning features throughout, the text guides the researcher through the choice of appropriate methods, the implementation of the research and the communication of the findings to a range of audiences. This is the essential A-Z of development research.

Handbook of Research on Development and Religion Matthew Clarke, 2013-01-01. With eighty percent of the world's population professing religious faith, religious belief is a common human characteristic. This fascinating and highly unique Handbook brings together state-of-the-art research on incorporating religion into development studies literature and research. The expert contributors illustrate that as religious identity is integral to a community's culture, exclusion of religious consideration will limit successful development interventions; it is therefore necessary to conflate religion and development to enhance efforts to improve the lives of the poor. Issues addressed include key tenets, beliefs and histories of religions; religious response to development concerns; gender; environment; education; microfinance; humanitarian assistance; and the role of faith-based organisations and missionaries in the wider development context. Practical case studies of countries across Africa, Eastern Europe and the Pacific, including Australia, underpin the research, providing evidence that the intersection between religion and development is neither new nor static. By way of conclusion, suggestions are prescribed for extensive further research in order to advance understanding of this nascent field. This path-breaking Handbook will prove a thought-provoking and stimulating reference tool for academics, researchers and students in international development, international relations, comparative religion and theology.

Research and Development in Clinical Nursing Practice Brenda Roe, Christine Webb, 2008-04-30. Though slogans such as 'nursing must be a research-based profession' have been around for a long time, recent initiatives such as Nursing Development Units (NDUs), quality assurance and evidence-based practice have moved nursing to the forefront amongst health professions in taking seriously the promotion of rational care based on a critical appraisal of past practices and the evaluation of new ideas and techniques. This is the first book to examine research and development in clinical nursing practice. It explains how to do it and how to apply it.

Fieldwork in the Global South Jenny Lunn, 2014-03-26. Choosing to do fieldwork overseas, particularly in the Global South, is a challenge in itself. The researcher faces logistical complications, health and safety issues cultural differences language barriers and much more But permeating the entire fieldwork experience are a range of intermediating ethical issues While many researchers seek to follow institutional and disciplinary guidelines on ethical research practice the reality is that each situation is unique and the individual researcher must negotiate their own path through a variety of ethical challenges and dilemmas This book was created to share such experiences to serve not as a manual for ethical practice but rather as a place for reflection and mutual learning Since ethical issues face the researcher at every turn and cannot be compartmentalized into one part of the research process this book puts them at the very center of the discussion and uses them as the lens with which to view different stages of fieldwork The book covers four thematic areas ethical challenges in the field ethical dimensions of researcher identity ethical issues relating to research methods and ethical dilemmas of engagement with a variety of actors This volume also provides fresh insights by drawing on the experiences of research students rather than those of established academics The contributors describe research conducted for their master s degrees and doctorates offering honest and self critical reflections on how they negotiated ethical challenges and dilemmas The chapters cover fieldwork carried out in countries across Africa Asia and Latin America on a broad sweep of development related topics This book should have wide appeal to undergraduates postgraduates and early career researchers working under the broad umbrella of development studies Although focused on fieldwork in the Global South the discussions and reflections are relevant to field research in many other countries and contexts

Biostatistics in Biopharmaceutical Research and Development Ding-Geng Chen,2024-12-24 The Deming Conference on Applied Statistics has long been deemed an influential event in the biostatistics and biopharmaceutical profession It provides learning experience on recent developments in statistical methodologies in biopharmaceutical applications and FDA regulations This book honors 80 years of contributions and dedication of the Deming Conference in biostatistics and biopharmaceutical clinical trial methodology and applications All chapters are contributed by world class and prominent Deming speakers who ve contributed their cutting edge research and developments to the community Volume 2 covers Biomarkers in Drug Development Time To Event Data Analysis and Methods and emerging development in biopharmaceutical biostatistics This book aims to booster research education and training in biostatistics and in biopharmaceutical research and development

Research and Fieldwork in Development Daniel Hammett,Chasca Twyman,Mark Graham,2014-12-08 Research and Fieldwork in Development explores both traditional and cutting edge research methods from interviews and ethnography to spatial data and digital methods Each chapter provides the reader with an understanding of the theoretical basis of research methods reflects upon their practice and outlines appropriate analysis techniques The text also provides a cutting edge focus on the role of new media and technologies in conducting research The final chapters return to a set of broader concerns in development research providing a new and dynamic set of engagements with ethics and risk in fieldwork integrating methods and engaging development research methods with knowledge exchange practices Each chapter is supported by several case studies written by global experts within the field documenting encounters and experiences and linking theory to practice Each chapter is also complimented by an end of chapter summary suggestions for further reading and websites and questions for further reflection and practice The text critically locates development research within the field of international development to give an accessible and comprehensive introduction to development research methods This book provides an invaluable overview to the practice of international development research and serves as an essential resource for undergraduate and postgraduate student embarking of development fieldwork It is supported by online resources including extended bibliographies for each chapter example risk and ethic forms example policy briefing notes research reports links to websites and data sources

A Practical Guide to Cluster Randomised Trials in Health Services Research Sandra Eldridge,Sally Kerry,2012-02-20 Cluster randomised trials are trials in which groups or clusters of individuals are randomly allocated to different forms of treatment In health care these trials often compare different ways of managing a disease or promoting healthy living in contrast to conventional randomised trials which randomise individuals to different treatments classically comparing new drugs with a placebo They are increasingly common in health services research This book addresses the statistical practical and ethical issues arising from allocating groups of individuals or clusters to different interventions Key features Guides readers through the stages of conducting a trial from recruitment to reporting Presents a wide range of examples with particular emphasis on trials in health services research and primary care with both principles and techniques explained Topics are specifically presented in the order in which investigators think about issues when they are designing a trial Combines information on the latest developments in the field together with a practical guide to the design and implementation of cluster randomised trials Explains principles and techniques through numerous examples including many from the authors own experience Includes a wide range of references for those who wish to read further This book is intended as a practical guide written for researchers from the health professions including doctors psychologists and allied health professionals as well as statisticians involved in the design execution analysis and reporting of cluster randomised trials Those with a more general interest will find the plentiful examples illuminating
