Rua And The Maori Millennium:

Rua and the Maori Millennium Peter Webster,1979 In the heart of the Urewera ranges in the North Island of New Zealand there is a great clearing in the forest and scattered over it the empty houses of a departed people these are remains of the once thriving Maori settlement of Maungapohatu Here at the beginning of this century the prophet Rua Kenana led his people to found a New Jerusalem in the wilderness In the shadow of a sacred mountain over a thousand of Rua s followers sought to escape the European settlers and live free from the domination of an alien race Jacket Millennialism and

Violence Michael Barkun,2012-12-06 As the world approaches the year 2000 many societies are experiencing an unprecedented growth in millenarian movements that anticipate an imminent and total transformation of the world Many of these movements have been associated with violence either as a means for producing change or as a response to confrontations with state authority This book draws together research on this topic from political science psychology sociology and history in an attempt to understand the relationship between millenarian movements and episodes of violence

the Victorian Interpretation of Racial Conflict James Belich,2015-02-16 First published in 1986 James Belich s groundbreaking book and the television series based upon it transformed New Zealanders understanding of New Zealand s great civil war struggles between Maori and Pakeha in the 19th century Revealing the enormous tactical and military skill of Maori and the inability of the Victorian interpretation of racial conflict to acknowledge those qualities Belich s account of the New Zealand Wars offered a very different picture from the one previously given in historical works This bestselling classic of New Zealand history and Belich's larger argument about the impact of historical interpretation resonates today Secret History Steven Loveridge, Richard S. Hill, 2023-07-13 In 1900 a handful of New Zealand police detectives watched out for spies, seditionists and others who might pose a threat to state and society. The Police Force remained the primary instrument of such human intelligence in New Zealand until 1956 when a decade into the Cold War a dedicated Security Service was created. Over the same period New Zealand's role within signals intelligence networks evolved from the Imperial Wireless Chain to the UKUSA intelligence alliance now known as Five Eyes. The first of two volumes chronicling the history of state surveillance in New Zealand, Secret History opens up the secret world of security intelligence through to 1956. It is the story of the surveillers who in times of war and peace, turmoil and tranquillity monitored and analysed perceived threats to national interests. It is also the story of the surveilled: those whose association with organisations and movements led to their public and private lives being documented in secret files. Secret History explores a hidden and intriguing dimension of New Zealand history, one which sits uneasily with cherished national notions of an exceptionally fair and open society. State Authority, Indigenous Autonomy Richard S. Hill, 2004 Examining the relations between the Maori and the Fuling New Zealand government, this text provides an overview of the Maori quest for autonomy in the first half of the 20th century and the government's responses to those requests. Nga Kahui Pou Mason Durie, 2003-11-01 By 2051 the ethnic Maori population will almost double in size to close to a million or twenty-two percent of the total New Zealand population. Even more dramatically by 2051 thirty-three percent of all children in the country will be Maori. This substantial change in our society will have major implications for Maori and wider society. Professor Durie discusses traditions and customs and addresses contemporary needs in order to build development strategies for the launch of the Maori population into the new millennium. Encircled Lands Judith Binney, 2021-05-07 For Europeans during the nineteenth century the Urewera was a remote wilderness for those who lived there it was a sheltering heartland. This history documents the first hundred years of the Rohe Pōtae the encircled lands of the Urewera following European contact. After large areas of land were lost the Urewera became for a brief period an autonomous district governed by its own leaders. But in 1921-22 the Urewera District Native Reserve was abolished in law. Its very existence became largely forgotten except in local memory. Recovering this history from a wealth of contemporary documents, many written by Urewera leaders, Encircled Lands contextualises Tūhoe's quest for a constitutional agreement that restores their authority in their lands. Iwi Angela Ballara, 1998
