

The title is enclosed in a highly decorative frame. At the top, a pediment contains a frieze with four figures: a winged cherub, a seated figure, a figure with a shield, and another winged cherub. The corners of the frame feature circular medallions with figures. The sides are decorated with vertical panels of stylized floral and foliate patterns. Below the title, a horizontal band with a Greek key (meander) pattern separates the text from the central vignette. The vignette itself is an oval landscape showing a coastal scene with a large stone wall or fortification on the left, a bay with several sailing ships, and a large mountain in the background. Two winged female figures, resembling Caryatids, support the frame on either side of the vignette. The bottom of the frame is a wide base containing the publisher's information, flanked by decorative scrollwork.
