

NEW YORK CENTRAL

A black and white photograph of the front of a New York Central steam locomotive. The locomotive is viewed from a low angle, looking up at the large, circular smokestack. The smokestack has a central circular opening and is surrounded by a ring of rivets. Below the smokestack, the number "5441" is visible on a small plaque. The locomotive's boiler is made of riveted steel plates. The front of the locomotive shows the heavy-duty frame and the large, curved cowcatcher at the bottom. The background is a plain, light-colored sky.
