Radical Man:

Radical Man Charles Hampden-Turner, 1971 Refusing to be a Man John Stoltenberg, 2005-07-28 Since its original publication in 1989 Refusing to be a Man has been acclaimed as a classic and widely cited in gender studies literature. In 13 eloquent essays Stoltenberg articulates the first fully argued liberation theory for men that will also liberate women. He argues that male sexual identity is entirely a political and ethical construction whose advantages grow out of injustice. His thesis is however ultimately one of hope that precisely because masculinity is so constructed it is possible to refuse it to act against it and to change. A new introduction by the author discusses the roots of his work in the American civil rights and radical feminist movements and distinguishes it from the anti feminist philosophies underlying the recent tide of reactionary mens movements.

Conversation in a Train and Other Critical Writings Frank Sargeson, 2013-10-01 Frank Sargeson wrote fiction for over half a century as well as occasional criticism in many forms and on many topics. Writers considered include D H Lawrence, Sherwood Anderson, Henry Lawson and Olive Schreiner, besides fellow New Zealanders such as Katherine Mansfield, Janet Frame, Dan Davin, James Courage, Bill Pearson and Ronald Hugh Morrieson. He was particularly concerned with societies which grew on the nineteenth century European colonial frontiers and with the writers they produced. A comprehensive bibliography of Sargeson's non fiction prose is included.

The White Man's World Bill Schwarz, 2011-10-27 Memories of Empire is a trilogy which explores the complex subterranean political currents which emerged in English society during the years of postwar decolonization. Bill Schwarz shows that through the medium of memory the empire was to continue to possess strange afterlives long after imperial rule itself had vanished. The White Man's World, the first volume in the trilogy, explores ideas of the white man as they evolved during the time of the British Empire from the mid nineteenth century to the mid twentieth century, looking particularly at the transactions between the colonies and the home society of England. The story works back from the popular response to Enoch Powell's Rivers of Blood speech in 1968, in which identifications with racial whiteness came to be highly charged. Driving this new racial politics, Bill Schwarz proposes, were unappeased memories of Britain's imperial past. The White Man's World surveys the founding of the so called white colonies, looking in particular at Australia, South Africa and Rhodesia, and argues that it was in this experience that contemporary meanings of racial whiteness first cohered. These colonial nations, white men's countries as they were popularly known, embodied the conviction that the future of humankind lay in the hands of white men. The systems of thought which underwrote the ideas of the white man and of the white man's country worked as a form of ethnic populism which gave life to the concept of Greater Britain. But if during the Victorian and Edwardian period the empire was largely narrated in heroic terms in the masculine mode, by the time of decolonization in the 1960s racial whiteness had come to signify defeat and desperation, not only in the colonies but in the metropole too. Identifications with racial whiteness did not disappear in England; in the moment of decolonization they came alive again, fuelled by memories of what whiteness had once represented.
