Two Roads to War Robin Higham, 2012-06-15 Noted aviation historian Robin Higham has written this comparative study of the evolution of the French and British air arms from 1918 to 1940 to determine why the Armée de l'Air was defeated in June 1940 but the Royal Air Force was able to win the battle over Britain in September After analyzing the structure men and matériel of the air arms and the government and economic infrastructure of both countries he concludes that the French force was dominated by the Armée de Terre had no suitably powerful aero engines and suffered from the chaos of French politics In contrast the independent RAF evolved into a sophisticated scientifically based force supported by consistent government practices Higham's thorough examination however finds the British not without error

Harris, 2006-02-17 Includes two new chapters One of the more interesting and better books on military aviation to appear in the last few years Journal of Military History Since the publication of the first edition of Why Air Forces Fail the debate over airpower's role in military operations has only intensified Here eminent historians Robin Higham and Stephen J Harris assemble a team of experts to add essential new details to their cautionary tale for current practitioners of aerial warfare Together the contributors examine the complex often deep seated reasons for the catastrophic failures of the Russian Polish French British Italian German Argentine and

Bailey,2013-06-18 A critical re examination of the conduct and outcome of Anglo American wartime aircraft supply diplomacyThrough a series of case studies Gavin J Bailey reveals new details of how Britain used American aircraft and integrates this with broader British statecraft and strategy He challenges conceptions that Britain was strategically reliant on the US and reveals a complicated asymmetrical dependency between the wartime allies Aircraft were at the heart of British supply diplomacy with the United States in the Second World War and were at the forefront of the Roosevelt administration s policy of aiding the Anglo French alliance against Germany They were the largest item in British purchasing in the US in 1940 a key consideration in the Lend Lease of 1941 and a major component of several wartime conferences between Churchill and Roosevelt Strategy for Victory David Ian Hall,2007-12-30 Strategy for Victory The Development of British Tactical Air Power 1919 1943 examines the nature of the inter Service crisis between the British Army and the RAF over the provision of effective air support for the army in the Second World War Material for this book is drawn primarily from the rich collection of documents at the National Archives UK and other British archives The author makes a highly original point that Britain s independent RAF was in fact a disguised blessing for the Army and that the air force s independence was in part a key reason why a successful solution to the army s air support problems was found The analysis traces why the British army went to war in 1939 without adequate air support and how an effective system of support was organized by the RAF As such it is the first scholarly survey of the origins and development of British air support doctrine and practice during the early years of the Second World War The provision of direct air support was of central importance to the success enjoyed by Anglo American armies during the latter half of the Second World War First in North Africa and later in Italy and North West Europe American British and Empire armies fought most if not all of their battles with the knowledge that they enjoyed unassailable air superiority throughout the battle area This advantage however was the product of a long and bitter dispute between the British Army and the Royal Air Force that began at the end of the First World War and continued virtually unabated until it was resolved in late 1942 and early 1943 when the 2nd Tactical Air Force was created Battlefield experience and in particular success in North Africa combined with the hard work wisdom and perseverance of Air Marshals Sir Arthur Tedder and Arthur Coningham the active co operation of General Bernard Montgomery and the political authority of Prime Minister Winston Churchill produced a uniquely British system that afforded the most comprehensive effective and flexible air support provided by any air force during the war The book is divided into two equal parts of five chapters Part one surveys how the British Army went to war in 1939 without adequate air support and part two explains how an effective system of air support was organized by the middle years of the war The analysis traces Britain s earliest experience with aircraft in the Great War 1914 1918 the inter war period of doctrinal development and inter Service rivalry and the major campaigns in France and the Middle East during the first half of the Second World War when the weaknesses in Army RAF co operation were first exposed and eventually resolved As such it is the first scholarly survey of the origin and development of British air support doctrine and practice during the early years of the Second World War Winged Crusade Michael Robert Terry, 2006
