Boys Will Be Boys Sara Suleri Goodyear, 2013-01-15 A daughter's nostalgic tribute to her father an intimate account of the socio cultural fabric of the postcolonial world of Pakistan Dr Jharna Malaviya Research Journal of English Language and Literature Sara Suleri Goodyear's Meatless Days is a finely wrought memoir of her girlhood in Pakistan after the 1947 partition In Boys Will Be Boys she returns with the same treasury of language humor and passion to her childhood and early adulthood to pay tribute to her father the political journalist Z A Suleri known as Pip for his patriotic and preposterous disposition Taking its title from that jokingly chosen by her father for his unwritten autobiography Boys Will Be Boys dips in and out of Suleri Goodyear's upbringing in Pakistan and her life in the United States moving between public and private history and addressing questions of loss and cultural displacement through a resolutely comic lens In this rich portrait Pip emerges as a prodigious figure an ardent agitator against British rule in the 1930s and 1940s a founder of the Times of Karachi and the Evening Times on and off editor of the Pakistan Times for a brief time director of the Pakistan military intelligence service and a frequently jailed antagonist of successive Pakistani leaders To the author though he was also preposterous counting himself king of infinite space a man who imposed outrageously on his children Suleri Goodyear invites the reader into an intimacy shaped equally by history and intensely personal detail creating an elegant elegy for a man of force and contradiction On Judgment Day he told his daughter I will say to God Be merciful for I have already been judged by my child Wake Up and Die Right!" Ben Foster, 2010-06 How might it happen that a boy of five or six would be tortured by the question of the existence of God How would this happen even if that boy were raised to be an atheist by atheist parents If the boy was never baptized and never taken to church Was never told about any religion This book records the spiritual autobiography of a boy who raised in a household which discouraged belief in anything religious nevertheless came at a young age to worry about the place of God in his life and family and suffered from intense fears that he would be condemned to hell because he had not been baptized Looking back here is the way the author describes his early years I grew up in a household with no place for God or religion My mother and father were atheists They did not believe in any divinities and certainly not in the divinity of Jesus Perhaps like some of their intellectual friends they dismissed the idea that Jesus of Nazareth ever existed This was in America in the 1930s and 40s a time when scientists and intellectuals challenged the claims of Christianity For my parents the questions of who Jesus was and whether he had actually walked the earth were irrelevant Is there a God in heaven Is creation a gift to us from God Does God love and care for his children These were not questions my parents would entertain Such statements had been denounced as meaningless by the scientists and the rationalists who insisted that all discussions of God are pointless The author recalls his childhood swept by the cold winds of atheism as especially painful because his mother suffering from the loss of meaning of the atheist's vision sank into a deep depression and then into madness She suffered a series of nervous breakdowns and spent most of the author's early years in and out of mental hospitals As a child the author felt spiritually bankrupt He felt he counted for little in my parents world I counted for even less in the larger world I looked out at the vast universe that the scientists described and saw it as a frightening place Darkness and frozen space extended for millions of miles in all directions and there was nothing out there to comfort us or give our lives meaning The author was born into the Great Depression and went off to grammar school during World War II both events exerting a terrible impact on his family contributing to his mother's mental imbalance and his own feelings of insecurity I was four years old the author writes when World War II began As the war grew more widespread and destructive I watched with terror the newsreel reports of Nazi bombings I listened horrified to the newscasts on the radio Every week fresh issues of Time and Life magazines entered our house and they brought new images of cities in flames or bombed to smoking rubble There were close up photos of the dead on the battlefield of soldiers bleeding to death of bodies on a beach I recall in particular a photo of a boy my age standing in the ruins of his apartment building somewhere in Europe He looks lost frightened and utterly alone He wonders if his mother missing since the bombing is alive in the ruins Rubble and twisted metal are all that remain of the city street he had called his home Turning the pages of that Life magazine a terrible fear and sorrow seized me I identified with the boy I feared what had happened to him would happen to me The author speaks of how from a source he could not name powerful religious emotions primarily fear of a God of Wrath took hold of him and initiated me into a secretive life I kept hidden from my father The fears were brought into focus when I casually used words that had a religious meaning I didn't understand The words were these Cross my heart and hope to die I had heard other kids utter these words when they wanted to impress one another with the truth of an assertion They often said them when it seemed fair! The Halo and the Noose Graham Williams, Dorian Haarhoff, 2009 About Grief Ron Marasco, Brian Shuff, 2010-09-16 About Grief is a refreshingly down to earth book about an issue that blindsides many people Written in a warm and conversational way that is at times deeply moving at times surprisingly amusing and always practical it covers a wide range of issues facing people in grief Marasco and Shuff have done the footwork for readers who wish to know more about this complex subject Using a variety of sources including books films music and many hours spent talking with people in grief the authors distill their candid insights into a series of short single topic essays that can be easily digested in one sitting a format they found grieving people preferred This is not a book written by clinicians so there's no cold jargon It's not a memoir of one individual's grief so it has something for everyone And it's not a self peddling inspirational book It's a wise plain spoken comforting book about an intimidating topic As one reader recently said of About Grief Reading this book is like having a smart entertaining friend around at a time when you really need one

Ricci, In a letter to Boccaccio Petrarch extolled the virtue of poetry and letters for promoting an understanding of both human nature and morals The letter was designed to console him after hearing a prediction that he was soon to die and that he ought to renounce poetry The prophecy came from an elder renowned for his piety but Petrarch admonished that too often dishonesty and fraud are couched in religious sentiments Nothing not even death according to Petrarch ought to divert us from literature For Petrarch Virgil was the source for understanding how literary studies not only promote eloquence but enhance morals If anything literature dispels the fear of death The claims of this volume is that it may be the case that the virtuous life can be achieved by those ignorant of letters but a more direct and certain route is guaranteed by a devotion to literature The collected works in this new volume of the Transaction series Religion and Public Life heeds Petrarch's advice that literature not only orients us to life's developmental stages it can provide us with a more complete understanding of the human character while artfully advancing morals To this end Michelle Darnell's opening chapter entitled A New Age of Reason explains how existentialism is an argument for how literature can take on philosophical form not as formal argument but as persuasive narrative Over the objections of even those who study Sartre Darnell uses Sartre's The Age of Reason as a model and shows how his literary output was a legitimate philosophical inquiry In addition to the Darnell piece the volume boasts a series of outstanding and innovative works by scholars in the field Taken together as a whole these authors not only illustrate the moral consequences of an original choice but oblige the reader to explore the ramifications of such a choice in one's own life Gabriel R Ricci is professor of humanities and the chair of the Department of History at Elizabethtown College He is the author of Time Consciousness The Philosophical Uses of History and the editor of Transaction's much admired Religion and
