Environment Committee,1989 RENEWABLE NATURAL RESOURCES - ECONOMIC INCENTIVES FOR IMPROVED MANAGEMENT. Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development,1989 Environmental and Natural Resources Economics Steven Hackett,Sahan T. M. Dissanayake,2019-07-23 This new edition of Environmental and Natural Resources Economics provides an accessible yet rigorous treatment of the subject including the economics of sustainability The new edition has been updated extensively throughout A new chapter has been added on fisheries economics and policy and the chapter on global climate change has been substantially rewritten to incorporate new scientific information and evolving public policy Many new figures and tables have been added and the glossary has also been expanded Readers will appreciate the balanced and accessible coverage and the integration of economics with science and public policy Trade and Sustainable Development DIANE Publishing Company,1994-07 Maintaining Biodiversity in Forest Ecosystems Malcolm L. Hunter,1999-06-10 Discusses the ways in which we can continue to benefit from forests while conserving their biodiversity Decentralization and Coordination of Water Resource Management Douglas D. Parker,Yacov Tsur,2011-07-08 Centralized top down management of water resources through regulations has created unnecessary economic burdens upon users More flexible decentralized controls through the use of economic incentives have gained acceptance over the past decade The theme of this book is the increasing efforts throughout water scarce regions to rely upon economic incentives and decentralized mechanisms for efficient water management and allocation The book begins with a section of introductory chapters describing water systems institutions constraints and similarities in the following regions Israel and the Middle East Turkey California Florida and Australia Four of these regions face similar climates with wet winters and dry summers Florida has a more even seasonal distribution of rainfall yet it uses similar management strategies in controlling groundwater demand and water quality The book concludes with a section on water management case studies These case studies examine issues of conflict related to both water quality and water quantity While the case studies address both international and intranational concerns in specific regions of the world they portray broad principles that are applicable to many regions Natural Resource Economics Barry C. Field,2008-03-12 People make decisions regarding the use of natural resources every day from the individual recycling a sheet of paper to governments of large nations creating energy policy Those decisions ultimately affect people around the world Their motivation and results are best framed and analyzed using the tools of natural resource economics Field presents the methods and applications of the discipline in the latest edition of his popular text The updated book retains its successful structure first presenting basic economic principles as they apply to natural resource use and then examining the economic issues surrounding individual resources New material is included on energy demand and efficiency nonrenewable resources individual transferable fishing quotas water pricing agricultural cropland programs and the Endangered Species Act

The Economic Valuation of Landscape Change José Manuel L. Santos,1998-12-18 The increase in landscape degradation in the last decades has resulted in a growing public concern for policies to conserve the countryside This book presents theories of valuation and economic welfare which are applied to policies to conserve the landscape Environmental agricultural and ecological economists will be interested in this book as will geographers and those involved in planning and countryside management

Forest Certification: A Policy Perspective Chris Elliott,2000-01-01 This paper analyses the development of certification programmes in three countries Indonesia Canada and Sweden using the Advocacy Coalition Framework ACF as a theoretical reference point The ACF is an actor based framework for analysing policy processes and has not previously been applied in a developing country Actors in the three countries took different approaches to certification In Canada in a programme development process supported by the forest products industry a management systems approach was taken In Sweden performance standards were developed in a process initially driven by NGOs In Indonesia certification was led by an NGO within a framework established by government and a performance standards approach was used The paper concludes that forest certification can be best understood as a policy instrument that promotes and facilitates policy orientated learning among actors and provides indirect incentives for improved forest management Learning occurs both as the standards to be used for certification are developed and as they are implemented The benefits of learning and consensus building among actors such as NGOs forest companies private forest owners indigenous peoples governments etc who have traditionally been in conflict with each other can be significant On the other hand where fundamental changes in forest policy such as tenure and forest revenue reform are needed certification should not be seen as a substitute for these A further conclusion is that while public policies change over periods of decades the private policies of retailers and forest product companies can adapt more rapidly to changing circumstances The concept of a fast track of private policy change compared to the slower track of governmental policy change is therefore proposed and described A number of interesting theoretical and empirical avenues for further research on certification are discussed Australia's Water Resources John Pigram, 2007-05-25 Australia's Water Resources seeks to explore the circumstances underpinning the profound reorientation of attitudes and relationships to water that has taken place in Australia in recent decades. The changing emphasis from development to management of water resources continues to evolve and is reflected in a series of public policy initiatives directed towards rational, efficient and sustainable use of the nation's water. Australia is now recognised as a pacesetter in water reform. Administrative restructuring, water pricing, water markets and trade, integrated water resources management and the emergence of the private sector are features of a more economically sound and environmentally compatible water industry. It is important that these changes are documented and their rationale and effectiveness explained. This timely work provides an important synthesis of these issues. This revised paperback edition is a fully corrected reprint of the hardback edition.
