New Zealand and the Pacific Islands National Experiences and Practice addresses cultural heritage protection in a region which comprises one third of the Earth's surface. In response to local needs, Australia, New Zealand and the Pacific Islands have developed some of the most important and influential techniques, legislation, doctrine and theories in cultural heritage management in the world. The evolution of the heritage protection ethos and contemporary architectural conservation practices in Australia and Oceania are discussed on a national and regional basis using ample illustrations and examples. Accomplishments in architectural conservation are discussed in their national and international contexts with an emphasis on original developments, solutions and contributions made to the overall field. Enriched with essays contributed from fifty-nine specialists and thought leaders in the field, this book contains an extraordinary breadth and depth of research and synthesis on the why's and how's of cultural heritage conservation. Its holistic approach provides an essential resource and reference for students, academics, researchers, policy makers, practitioners and all who are interested in conserving the built environment.

Community Resources Johanna Gibson, 2016-12-05. Protection of traditional knowledge and resources is of critical concern not only to the groups involved but also to the international trading community for which these resources are of increasing economic importance. This work examines the concept of community intellectual property models and additional sources for protection at international law, including environmental and human rights frameworks. Intellectual property law is critiqued as an inadequate framework to address the fundamental object of protection for the communities themselves: the management of traditional use as well as the biological and cultural sustainability of this use. The work sets out an international framework based on the concept of community resources, recognizing the unique claims embodied in traditional knowledge, incorporating customary law and facilitating community management of resources. International in perspective and scope, the book will be a valuable resource for academics and researchers in law, international relations and cultural studies.

Inside the Designer: Understanding imagining in spatial design. Marisha McAuliffe, 2016. Design is fundamental to our modern world. All human achievements, great and small, owe their being in no small measure to the concept of design. Whether it is in social and technological innovations, great human endeavours, building and construction projects or simply the environment and desire of the individual, design has been there. But a question remains: what goes on inside the designer's head? For many decades now, researchers, philosophers and academics have pondered this question. In this book, Dr Marisha McAuliffe focuses on the notions of imagining and design to interrogate such a question. In this book, McAuliffe outlines her seminal work as a design practitioner and academic over many years to expand our understanding of imagining in the spatial design disciplines of architecture and interior design. This book is compulsive reading for the design professional, the student of design and those who have pondered what goes on inside the designer's head. Commonwealth
