Transaction Cost Economics and Beyond John Groenewegen, 2012-12-06 This book contains the papers that were presented in 1994 at the conference Transaction Cost Economics and Beyond organized by GRASP at the Tinbergen Institute in Rotterdam It is generally recognized that transaction cost economics TCE is at the heart of the new theory of the firm It is a well established research program with a well developed theoretical framework and good results in empirical testing However critics consider the approach too limited to understand the essential characteristics of such complex organizations like firms Critics plea convincingly for the need to go beyond the original TCE framework and to develop a more pluralistic approach towards issues of economic organization The new theory of the firm can only be further developed when scholars are willing to debate the issues in an open minded academic way I thank the participants of the conference very much for putting so much effort in writing their papers and for their contribution to an open and stimulating discussion It is my wish that this book contributes to the further development of the theory of the firm and that it helps us to a better understanding of the complexities of economic organization I would like to thank the following organizations for their support the Tinbergen Institute the Vereniging Trust Fonds of the Erasmus University the Faculty of Economics of the Erasmus University and GRASP Group for Research and Advice in Strategic management and Industrial Policy

The Information Processing Theory of Organization John L. Kmetz, 2018-11-09 First published in 1998 revised in 2021 this volume develops and tests an information processing model of organization within the context of the accession of a new generation of a production technology The model conceptualizes organizations as systems which accomplish their objectives through the processing of information The book begins with the conceptual basis of the theory developing the fundamental concepts of information information processing and technology The accession of an automatic avionics tester during the 1970s and 1980s is the change in production technology used to test the theory The theory is tested by mapping and analysing performance with a three wave longitudinal field experiment and objective performance measures in the workflow of a very complex system the

U S Navy s avionics maintenance organization The information processing capacity of the system is shown to be the primary determinant of system performance with or without the use of information technology Additional support for the theory comes from newer test and information technologies deployed in the 1980s and 1990s Implications of this theory for current generations of test technology are provided in the final chapters along with further development of the theory and its general application to many types of organizations Handbook of Organizational Change and Innovation Marshall Scott

Leadership, Organizational Change and Sensemaking Ronald Skea, 2021-06-03 Organizational change literature often focuses on the leaders role in giving sense to others of the need for change and there is a plethora of models and recipes on how to influence employees thinking about change organizational design and performance Notwithstanding this ready supply of advice research has shown that up to 90% of change programs fail to deliver their expected outcomes One of the reasons for this which has been neglected in the literature is that successful change in thinking starts with how leaders first make sense of the need for change and the challenges this poses to their own thinking This book surfaces the elements behind leader sensemaking that add to or detract from their ability to critically question their current thinking Leaders and interventionists have lacked practical and pragmatic advice on how to influence the process This book is the culmination of 10 years of research spent working with leaders in organizations as they interpreted the need for change and made choices about engaging or not with transformational change methodologies It reveals nine elements of sensemaking displayed by organizational leaders as they grapple with challenges to their current orthodoxies about how to lead and organize in times of change The book shows the latest state of knowledge on the topic and will be of interest to researchers academics practitioners and students in the fields of leadership change and organisational development
