Genre And The Invention Of The Writer Anis Bawarshi,2003-12-01 In a focused and compelling discussion Anis Bawarshi looks to genre theory for what it can contribute to a refined understanding of invention In describing what he calls the genre function he explores what is at stake for the study and teaching of writing to imagine invention as a way that writers locate themselves via genres within various positions and activities He argues in fact that invention is a process in which writers are acted upon by genres as much as they act themselves Such an approach naturally requires the composition scholar to re place invention from the writer to the sites of action the genres in which the writer participates This move calls for a thoroughly rhetorical view of invention roughly in the tradition of Richard Young Janice Lauer and those who have followed them Instead of mastering notions of good writing Bawarshi feels that students gain more from learning how to adapt socially and rhetorically as they move from one genred site of action to the next

The Modern Invention of Medieval Music Daniel Leech-Wilkinson, 2002-10-17 Medieval music has been made and remade over the past two hundred years For the nineteenth century it was vocal without instrumental accompaniment but with barbarous harmony that no one could have wished to hear For most of the twentieth century it was instrumentally accompanied increasingly colourful and increasingly enjoyed At the height of its popularity it sustained an industry of players and instrument makers all engaged in recreating an apparently medieval performance practice During the 1980s it became vocal once more exchanging colour and contrast for cleanliness and beauty But what happens to produce such radical changes of perspective And what can we learn from them about the way we interact with the past How much is really known about the way medieval music sounded Or have modern beliefs been formed and sustained less by evidence than the personalities of scholars and performers their ideologies and their musical tastes
