Nutrition and Health in Developing Countries Richard David Semba, Martin W. Bloem, 2001-04-25 The Nutrition and Health series of books have as an overriding mission to provide health professionals with texts that are considered essential because each includes 1 a synthesis of the state of the science 2 timely in depth reviews by the leading researchers in their respective fields 3 extensive up to date fully annotated reference lists 4 a detailed index 5 relevant tables and figures 6 identification of paradigm shifts and the consequences 7 virtually no overlap of information between chapters but targeted inter chapter referrals 8 suggestions of areas for future research and 9 balanced data driven answers to patient health professionals questions which are based upon the totality of evidence rather than the findings of any single study The series volumes are not the outcome of a symposium Rather each editor has the potential to examine a chosen area with a broad perspective both in subject matter as well as in the choice of chapter authors The international perspective especially with regard to public health initiatives is emphasized where appropriate The editors whose trainings are both research and practice oriented have the opportunity to develop a primary objective for their book define the scope and focus and then invite the leading authorities from around the world to be part of their initiative The authors are encouraged to provide an overview of the field discuss their own research and relate the research findings to potential human health consequences

Sims, 2016-09-16 Politics pervades every link in the food chain from the farm to the fork It influences what foods we eat how much they cost what we know about them and how safe they are This book brings the point home by focusing on the vexing issue of dietary fat content known to be a health menace but also an ingredient in many or most of our best loved foods Through this prism Dr Sims explores the politics of food assistance programmes with a case study of the National School Lunch programme agricultural policy for example the price premium paid to farmers for milk with high butterfat content food content with case studies of food labelling and the approval process for fat substitutes and dietary change with a case study of nutrition education programmes The book concludes with consideration of the costs and benefits of government intervention and nonintervention in food policy from the supply side to the demand side and its consequences for human health and happiness The Politics of Fat shows how government policy affects not only breakfast lunch and dinner but also our between meal snacks explores the nexus of health policy and agricultural policy from price supports to trade policy and is written in an accessible style enlivened by discussion provoking case studies Health Promotion and the Policy Process Carole Clavier, Evelyne de Leeuw, 2013-09-12 Scholars and governments recognize the importance of policy development and implementation for population health but there is a lack of systematic theoretical and conceptual development in the health field to address the issue Health Promotion and the Policy Process is the first book to take an in depth look at the theoretical advances in the political sciences including discussing the significance of political economy and sociology which so far have made little progress in health promotion development The book argues that focusing on how public policies work makes it possible to move beyond the more behavioural health education approach and make the transition from political statements to political strategies The authors draw from a wide array of theories on the policy process in the fields of political science and political sociology to illuminate health promotion strategies and objectives For example they discuss how Kingdon s Multiple Streams Model Sabatier s Advocacy Coalition Framework and policy network theories can contribute to greater health equity healthy public policies and community development Through practical and critical tools research and experience based discussion Health Promotion and the Policy Process discusses how theories can be used to influence evaluate orient or implement health promotion interventions and policies This book will be essential reading for health promoters who want to make a difference by influencing social determinants of health at the policy level including students public health professionals researchers practitioners decision makers and those concerned with applied policy research
