

The background of the cover is a painting of a shipwreck on a beach. The scene is dominated by a large, dark, rectangular block of wood or metal in the foreground, which appears to be part of the wreckage. Behind it, the sea is a deep, vibrant blue, and the sky is a lighter, hazy blue. In the distance, a small, yellow flag is visible on a pole. The overall mood is somber and contemplative.

Retreat Of Reason A Dilemma In The Philosophy Of Life:

The Retreat of Reason Ingmar Persson, 2005-11-03 One of the main original aims of philosophy was to give us guidance about how to live our lives The ancient Greeks typically assumed that a life led in accordance with reason a rational life would also be the happiest or most fulfilling Ingmar Persson's book resumes this project which has been largely neglected in contemporary philosophy But his conclusions are very different by exploring the irrationality of our attitudes to time our identity and our responsibility Persson shows that the aim of living rationally conflicts not only with the aim of leading the most fulfilling life but also with the moral aim of promoting the maximization and just distribution of fulfilment for all Persson also argues that neither the aim of living rationally nor any of the fulfilment aims can be rejected as less rational than any other We thus face a dilemma of either having to enter a retreat of reason insulated from everyday attitudes or making reason retreat from its aspiration to be the sole controller of our attitudes The Retreat of Reason explores three areas in which there is a conflict between the rational life and a life dedicated to maximization of fulfilment Persson contends that living rationally requires us to give up first our temporal biases secondly our bias towards ourselves and thirdly our responsibility to the extent that it involves the notion of desert and desert entailing notions But giving up these attitudes is so overwhelmingly hard that the effort to do so not only makes our own lives less fulfilling but also obstructs our efficient pursuit of the moral aim of promoting a maximum of justly distributed fulfilment Ingmar Persson brings back to philosophy the ambition of offering a broad vision of the human condition The Retreat of Reason challenges and disturbs some of our most fundamental ideas about ourselves

The Blackwell Guide to Ethical Theory Hugh LaFollette, Ingmar Persson, 2013-04-16 Building on the strengths of the highly successful first edition the extensively updated Blackwell Guide to Ethical Theory presents a complete state of the art survey written by an international team of leading moral philosophers A new edition of this successful and highly regarded Guide now reorganized and updated with the addition of significant new material Includes 21 essays written by an international team of leading philosophers Extensive substantive essays develop the main arguments of all the leading viewpoints in ethical theory Essays new to this edition cover evolution and ethics capability ethics virtues and consequences and the implausibility of virtue ethics

Armstrong's Materialist Theory of Mind Peter R. Anstey, David Braddon-Mitchell, 2022 Armstrong's Materialist Theory of Mind is one of a handful of texts that began the physicalist revolution in the philosophy of mind In this collection distinguished philosophers examine what we still owe to it how to expand it as well as looking back on how it came about

Revisiting Kant's Universal Law and Humanity Formulas Sven Nyholm, 2015-07-24 This book offers new readings of Kant's universal law and humanity formulations of the categorical imperative It shows how on these readings the formulas do indeed turn out being alternative statements of the same basic moral law and in the process responds to many of the standard objections raised against Kant's theory Its first chapter briefly explores the ways in which Kant draws on his philosophical predecessors such as Plato and especially Plato's

Republic and Jean Jacques Rousseau The second chapter offers a new reading of the relation between the universal law and humanity formulas by relating both of these to a third formula of Kant's viz the law of nature formula and also to Kant's ideas about laws in general and human nature in particular The third chapter considers and rejects some influential recent attempts to understand Kant's argument for the humanity formula and offers an alternative reconstruction instead Chapter four considers what it is to flourish as a human being in line with Kant's basic formulas of morality and argues that the standard readings of the humanity formula cannot properly account for its relation to Kant's views about the highest human good

The Ends of Harm Victor Tadros, 2011-09-15 Every modern democratic state imprisons thousands of offenders every year depriving them of their liberty causing them a great deal of psychological and sometimes physical harm Relationships are destroyed jobs are lost the risk of the offender being harmed by other offenders is increased and all at great expense to the state How can this brutal and costly enterprise be justified Traditionally philosophers answering this question have argued either that the punishment of wrongdoers is a good in itself retributivism or that it is a regrettable means to a valuable end such as the deterrence of future wrongdoing and thus justifiable on consequentialist grounds This book offers a critical examination of those theories and advances a new argument for punishment's justification calling it the duty view On this view the permission to punish offenders is grounded in the duties that they incur in virtue of their wrongdoing The most important duties that ground the justification of punishment are the duty to recognize that the offender has done wrong and the duty to protect others against wrongdoing In the light of these duties the state has a permission to punish offenders to ensure that they recognize that what they have done is wrong but also to protect others from crime In contrast to other justifications of punishment grounded in deterrence the duty view is developed in the light of a non consequentialist moral theory a theory which endorses constraints on the pursuit of the good It is shown that it is normally wrong to harm a person as a means to pursue a greater good However there are exceptions to this principle in cases where the person harmed has an enforceable duty to pursue the good The implications of this idea are explored both in the context of self defence and then in the context of punishment Through the systematic exploration of the relationship between self defence and punishment the book makes significant progress in defending a plausible set of non consequentialist moral principles that justify the punishment of wrongdoers and marks a significant contribution to the philosophical literature on punishment

Preference and Information Dan Egonsson, 2016-12-05 Is it important to our quality of life that the preferences we satisfy are rational and well informed Standard preferentialist theories allege that a person's preferences and their satisfaction are the correct measure of well being In preference sensitive theories preferences are important but do not count for everything This raises the question of whether we ought to make demands on these preferences In this book Egonsson presents a critical analysis of the Full Information Account of the Good which claims that only the satisfaction of rational and fully informed preferences has value for a person The problems he deals with include how is an information requirement to be formulated and shaped Is it possible to design a requirement that is both neutral to the agent's epistemic situation and reasonable Is the requirement reasonable Does it make sense to claim that some are better off if we satisfy the preferences they would have had in some merely hypothetical circumstances This is an important new book on preference rationality which will be of great interest to academics and students of ethics quality of life and rationality

Actual Consciousness Ted Honderich, 2014 What is it for you to be conscious There is no consensus in philosophy or science it has remained a mystery Ted Honderich develops a brand new theory of consciousness according to which perceptual consciousness is external to the perceiver It exists in a subjective physical world dependent on both you and the objective physical world

Autonomy, Rationality, and Contemporary Bioethics Jonathan Pugh, 2020 What should we do when autonomy and rationality seem to be in conflict in medical decision making as when there seems no good reason for a patient's wishes Jonathan Pugh offers a new framework for thinking about the concept of autonomy grounded in an understanding of the different roles that rational beliefs and rational desires have to play

Religion, Intolerance, and Conflict Steve Clarke, Russell Powell, Julian Savulescu, 2013-05-30 The relationship between religion intolerance and conflict is the subject of intense discussion particularly in the context of the ongoing threat of terrorism This book contains papers written by scholars in anthropology psychology philosophy and theology exploring the scientific and conceptual dimensions of religion and human conflict

Inclusive Ethics Ingmar Persson, 2017-01-26 Inclusive Ethics begins from two ideas which are part of our everyday morality namely that we have a moral reason to benefit or do good to other beings and that justice requires these benefits to be distributed equally A morality comprising these two general principles will be exceedingly hard to apply as these principles will have to be balanced against each in an intuitive fashion but also because the notion of what benefits beings is quite complex comprising both experiential components of pleasure and successful exercises of autonomy Ingmar Persson argues that on philosophical reflection these ideas turn out to be more far reaching than we imagine In particular the reason to benefit commits us to benefit beings by bringing them into existence Further since grounds that are commonly used to justify that some are better off than others such as their being more deserving or having rights to more are untenable justice requires a more extensive equality The book concludes by reflecting on the problems of getting people to accept a morality which differs markedly from the morality with which they have grown up

Emotion and Reason Warren TenHouten, 2014-06-23 Although much academic work has been done on the areas of mind brain and society a theoretical synthesis of the three levels of analysis the biological the mental and the social has not until now been put forward In Emotion and Reason Warren TenHouten presents a truly comprehensive classification of the emotions The book analyzes six key emotions anger acceptance aggressiveness love joy and happiness and anticipation It places them in historical context relates them to situations of work and intimacy and explains their functioning within an individuated autonomous character structure Divided into four parts the book presents a socioevolutionary theory of the emotions Affect spectrum Theory AST

which is based on a synthesis of three models of the emotions of social relationships and of cognition This book will be of value to undergraduate and postgraduate students as well as researchers with an interest in the sociology of emotions anthropology of emotions social psychology affective neuroscience political science behavioral neuroeconomics and philosophy

Egalitarianism Nils Holtug, Kasper Lippert-Rasmussen, 2006-11-30 Egalitarianism the view that equality matters attracts a great deal of attention amongst contemporary political theorists And yet it has turned out to be surprisingly difficult to provide a fully satisfactory egalitarian theory The cutting edge articles in Egalitarianism move the debate forward They are written by some of the leading political philosophers in the field Recent issues in the debate over equality are given careful consideration the distinction between telic and deontic egalitarianism prioritarianism and the so called levelling down objection to egalitarianism whether egalitarian justice should have whole lives or some subset thereof as its temporal focus the implications of Scanlon s contractualist account of the value of choice for egalitarian justice and the question of whether non human animals fall within the scope of egalitarianism and if so what the implications are Numerous classic issues receive a new treatment too how egalitarianism can be justified and how if at all this value should be combined with other values such as desert liberty and sufficiency how to define the worst off for the purposes of Rawls difference principle Elizabeth Anderson s feminist account of equality of relations how equality applies to risky choices and in particular whether it is justifiable to restrict the freedom of suppliers who wish to release goods that confer different levels of risk on consumers depending on their ability to pay Finally the implications of egalitarianism and prioritarianism for health care are scrutinized The contributors to the volume are Richard Arneson Linda Barclay Thomas Christiano Nils Holtug Susan Hurley Kasper Lippert Rasmussen Dennis McKerlie Ingmar Persson Bertil Tungodden Peter Vallentyne Andrew Williams and Jonathan Wolff

Environmental Ethics, 2009-01-01 This book shows that environmental protection is a global concern that must enlist all of humanity s cultural religious and moral resources The nine essays in this volume explore the foundations of environmental ethics in the Western philosophical tradition as well as from the perspectives of Christianity Islam Daoism and Buddhism and propose morally responsible attitudes towards nature and the environment

Persons, Interests, and Justice Nils Holtug, 2010-04-22 In our lives we aim to achieve welfare for ourselves that is to live good lives But we also have another more impartial perspective where we aim to balance our concern for our own welfare against a concern for the welfare of others This is a perspective of justice Nils Holtug examines these two perspectives and the relations between them The first part of the book is concerned with prudence more precisely with what the necessary and sufficient conditions are for having a self interest in a particular benefit It includes discussions of the extent to which self interest depends on preferences personal identity and what matters in survival It also considers the issue of whether it can benefit or harm a person to come into existence and what the implications are for our theory of self interest A prudential view is defended according to which a person has a present self interest in a future benefit if and only if she stands in a relation of continuous physical realization of appropriate psychology to the beneficiary where the strength of the self interest depends both on the size of the benefit and on the strength of this relation The second part of the book concerns distributive justice and so how to distribute welfare or self interest fulfilment over individuals It includes discussions of welfarism egalitarianism and prioritarianism population ethics the importance of personal identity and what matters for distributive justice and the importance of all these issues for various topics in applied ethics including the badness of death Here a version of prioritarianism is defended according to which roughly the moral value of a benefit to an individual at a time depends on both the size of the benefit and on the individual s self interest at that time in the other benefits that accrue to her at this and other times

Personal Value Toni Rønnow-Rasmussen,2011-06-23 Certain things like justice have impersonal value other things like your parents carry personal value their value is related to you and they are in a sense good or bad for you R nnow Rasmussen examines the notion of good for and provides a new analysis of personal value that justifies its inclusion within our classical value taxonomy

Harming Future Persons Melinda A. Roberts,David T. Wasserman,2009-07-31 Melinda A Roberts and David T Wasserman 1 Purpose of this Collection What are our obligations with respect to persons who have not yet and may not ever come into existence Few of us believe that we can wrong those whom we leave out of existence altogether that is merely possible persons We may think as well that the directive to be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth 1 does not hold up to close scrutiny How can it be wrong to decline to bring ever more people into existence At the same time we think we are clearly ob gated to treat future persons persons who don t yet but will exist in accordance with certain stringent standards Bringing a person into an existence that is truly awful not worth having can be wrong and so can bringing a person into an existence that is worth having when we had the alternative of bringing that same person into an existence that is substantially better We may think as well that our obligations with respect to future persons are triggered well before the point at which those persons commence their existence We think it would be wrong for example to choose today to turn the Earth of the future into a miserable place even if the victims of that choice do not yet exist
