Abstract

Generally everyone says that the children are the wealth of tomorrow & they will reflects the future of India. To take care of them if you wish to have strong India. As the measures we are taking for maintaining their health by the provision of healthy food & diet it will ultimately affect the growth of India. "The child's future depends upon the physical, intellectual and emotional growth". It was a slogan in 1986. Therefore the family, the community and the country as a whole must create conditions to shape the personality of child for useful role in Nation's future. All efforts must be concentrated to secure a happy and prosperous future for blooming flowers. Adequate nutrition is essential in early childhood to ensure healthy growth, proper organ formation and function, a strong immune system, and neurological and cognitive development. Economic growth and human development require well-nourished populations who can learn new skills, think critically and contribute to their communities.

Objectives: To assess the growth and development among children of unemployed and employed mothers.

Methodology: As this study involves evaluating the impact of maternal employment on growth & development among children, a Non-experimental Descriptive Correlational Research design was chosen.

Result: The result of this study showed at 5% level of significance first there is no significant difference between mean growth score (p = 0.8307) among samples of employed & unemployed mothers. Second there is significant difference between developmental score (p = 0.03630) among samples of employed & unemployed mothers. Third there is significant correlation between growth of samples of employed mothers (p = 0.0268) with their working hours. Fourth there is no significant correlation between development of samples of employed mothers (p = 0.0268) with their working hours.

Conclusion: The study concluded that there is a significant difference between mean development score and there is a significant co-relation between growth and maternal working hours.

Maternal Employment And Educational Development Of Children:

Maternal Employment and Educational Development of Children Chitra Ramachandran, 1989-01-01 Maternal Employment and Children's Development Adele Eskeles Gottfried, Allen W. Gottfried, 2013-11-21 In a review written in 1979 I noted that there was a paucity of research examining the effects of maternal employment on the infant and young child and also that longitudinal studies of the effects of maternal em ployment were needed Hoffman 1979 In the last 10 years there has been a flurry of research activity focused on the mother's employment during the child's early years and much of this work has been longi tudinal All of the studies reported in this volume are at least short term longitudinal studies and most of them examine the effects of maternal employment during the early years The increased focus on maternal employment during infancy is not a response to the mandate of that review but rather reflects the new employment patterns in the United States In March 1985 the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that 49 4% of married women with children less than a year old were employed outside the home Hayghe 1986 This figure is up from 39% in 1980 and more than double the rate in 1970 By now most mothers of children under 3 are in the labor force Handbook of Child Psychology, Social, Emotional, and Personality Development William Damon, Richard M. Lerner, Nancy Eisenberg, 2006-06-12 Part of the authoritative four volume reference that spans the entire field of child development and has set the standard against which all other scholarly references are compared Updated and revised to reflect the new developments in the field the Handbook of Child Psychology Sixth Edition contains new chapters on such topics as spirituality social understanding and non verbal communication Volume 3 Social Emotional and Personality Development edited by Nancy Eisenberg Arizona State University covers mechanisms of socialization and personality development including parent child relationships peer relationships emotional development gender role acquisition pro social and anti social development motivation achievement social cognition and moral reasoning plus a new chapter on adolescent development Parenting and Child Development in Nontraditional Families Michael E. Lamb, 1998-10-01 The goal of this volume is to discuss in depth the ways in which various deviations from traditional family styles affect childrearing practices and child development Each of the contributors illustrates the dynamic developmental processes that characterize parenting and child development in contexts that can be deemed nontraditional because they do not reflect the demographic characteristics of the traditional families on which social scientists have largely focused The contributors deal with the dynamics and possible effects of dual career families families with unusually involved fathers families characterized by the occurrence of divorce single parenthood remarriage poverty adoption reliance on nonparental childcare ethnic membership parents with lesbian or gay sexual orientations as well as violent and or neglectful parents By doing so the authors provide thoughtful literate and up to date accounts of a diverse array of nontraditional or traditionally understudied family types All the chapters offer answers to a common question How do these patterns of childcare affect children their experiences and their developmental processes The answers to these questions are of practical importance relevant to a growing proportion of the families and children in the United States but also have significant implications for the understanding of developmental processes in general As a result the book will be of value to basic social scientists as well as those professionals concerned with guiding and advising clients and public policy

Employed Mothers and Their Children Jacqueline V. Lerner, Nancy L. Galambos, 2021-04-14 In 1969 the author wrote a letter to Science protesting the unfair treatment of academic mothers who were expected to work full time Her problem with balancing work and family life was typical of the problems of most young parents in the United States More than 20 years later the same problems have not been solved even though more than twice as many families are headed by a fully employed parent or parents In this volume the authors survey the many problems of employed parents and their children Documenting problems by sound research and pointing to the future solutions is a valuable contribution to the psychological literature

The Promise of Early Childhood Development in Latin America and the Caribbean Emiliana Vegas, Lucrecia Santib ez,2009-12-03 Early childhood development outcomes play an important role throughout a person s life affecting one s income earning capacity and productivity longevity health and cognitive ability The deleterious effects of poor early childhood development outcomes can be long lasting affecting school attainment employment wages criminality and social integration of adults The authors first take stock of early childhood development indicators in the region and explore access to early childhood development services for children of different backgrounds They review recent evidence on the impact of early childhood development interventions in the region and investigate more deeply a selection of programs in Latin America and the Caribbean to distill lessons related to their design implementation and institutionalization processes The book concludes with a discussion of the challenges of scaling up and presents policy options to develop national early childhood development policies and programs that may be effective and sustained over time The Oxford Handbook of Poverty and Child Development Valerie Maholmes, Rosalind B. King, Ph.D., 2012-05-21 Comprehensive and integrative The Oxford Handbook of Poverty and Child Development describes the contextual and social ecology of children living in poverty and illuminates the biological and behavioral interactions that either promote optimal development or that place children at International Handbook of Early Childhood Education Marilyn risk of having poor developmental outcomes Fleer, Bert van Oers, 2017-10-10 This international handbook gives a comprehensive overview of findings from longstanding and contemporary research theory and practices in early childhood education in the Northern and Southern hemispheres The first volume of the handbook addresses theory methodology and the research activities and research needs of particular regions The second volume examines in detail innovations and longstanding programs curriculum and assessment and conceptions and research into child family and communities The two volumes of this handbook address the current theory methodologies and research needs of specific countries and provide insight into existing global similarities in early childhood practices By paying special attention to what is happening in the larger world contexts the volumes provide a representative overview of early childhood education practices and research and redress the current North South imbalance of published The SAGE Encyclopedia of Contemporary Early Childhood Education Donna Couchenour, J. work on the subject Kent Chrisman, 2016-03-15 The general public often views early childhood education as either simply babysitting or as preparation for later learning Of course both viewpoints are simplistic Deep understanding of child development best educational practices based on development emergent curriculum cultural competence and applications of family systems are necessary for high quality early education Highly effective early childhood education is rare in that it requires collaboration and transitions among a variety of systems for children from birth through eight years of age The SAGE Encyclopedia of Contemporary Early Childhood Education presents in three comprehensive volumes advanced research accurate practical applications of research historical foundations and key facts from the field of contemporary early childhood education Through approximately 425 entries this work includes all areas of child development physical cognitive language social emotional aesthetic as well as comprehensive review of best educational practices with young children effective preparation for early childhood professionals and policy making practices and addresses such questions as How is the field of early childhood education defined What are the roots of this field of study How is the history of early childhood education similar to yet different from the study of public education What are the major influences on understandings of best practices in early childhood education Maternal Employment, Migration, and Child Development Haiyong Liu, Thomas A. Mroz, Wilbert van der Klaauw, 2015 In this paper we analyze the roles and interrelationships between school inputs and parental inputs in affecting child outcomes in the U S We investigate the interactions among and endogeneity of these inputs in the production of child outcomes by specifying and estimating a behavioral model of parent s decisions that can affect these outcomes We focus on two important dimensions of school and parental input decisions the parents choice of which school attendance area to live in and the mother's decision to work as a proxy for maternal time directly devoted to child education Parents receive utility from consumption leisure and the child's achievement and they maximize expected utility In making location and employment decisions parents take into account the distribution of impacts of these decisions on their child s educational development modeled through a production function for child outcomes The environment in which these decisions are made is characterized by uncertain future wages and job prospects for both parents and uncertainty in the child's future educational outcomes Besides school quality residential location decisions are influenced by local labor market conditions housing and moving costs and geographic preferences Using data from the National Longitudinal Survey of Youth we integrate information on household migration maternal employment decisions and parental wage rates with observations on child outcomes over a 13 year period Our statistical model follows directly from the theoretical framework We relax many functional form assumptions that have been imposed by previous researchers who have studied how parents and schools can affect a child s development Estimating the educational production function as part of a structural model provides significantly different estimates of the production process The impacts of the school district characteristics diminish by factors of 2 to 4 after controlling for the fact that families may be choosing where to live because of the school district characteristics and labor market opportunities We also find that the impacts on child outcomes of having moved and working full time as opposed to not working to change signs and remain statistically significant after controlling for the possible endogeneity of these decisions When we turn to the estimates of the overall effects of changes in characteristics on child outcomes a somewhat different story emerges Since parents can re optimize by choosing different school districts and hours of work many of the benefits to students from changing school district characteristics end up having only minor impacts on the child test scores
