Babbage, 2010-03-16 In recent years educators have become increasingly concerned about the writing skills of students in elementary middle and high school They wonder what can be done to build proper writing skills particularly in a generation of students who may consider text messaging to be the only writing a person needs to do Extreme Writing describes how teachers can build upon the eagerness and skills that students apply to recreational social and friendly writing bringing enjoyment back into writing for students The Extreme Writing approach is not a precise formula for student achievement rather it is a shared discovery of the process the adventure the wonder and the liberation inherent in writing

Second Language Creative Writers Yan Zhao, 2015-02-03 This monograph investigates 15 L2 creative writers' social constructive power in identity constructions. Through interviews and think aloud story writing sessions, the central study considers how L2 writer voices are mediated by the writers' autobiographical identities, namely their sense of selves formulated by their previous language learning and literacy experiences. The inquiry takes the epistemological stance that L2 creative writing is simultaneously a cognitive construct and a social phenomenon and that these two are mutually inclusive. The study contributes to L2 creative writing research and L2 learner identity research and will be of benefit to researchers, language teachers, and writing instructors who wish to understand creative writing processes in order to help develop their students' positive self-esteem, confidence, motivation, and engagement with the L2.

Making Meaning by Making Connections Kathy L. Schuh, 2016-10-20 This book documents those first links that students make between content they learn in their classrooms and their prior experiences. Through six late elementary school case studies, these knowledge construction links are brought to life. The links of the students are often rich in describing who these individuals are, where they are in their learning process, and what is meaningful to them. Many times these links point to what has been learned both in and out of school and the contexts when and where that learning took place. The mind as rhizome metaphor was used to guide the development and interpretation of the studies, while the lens of Peircian semiotics provides an interpretation for these initial links. The resulting grounded theory is presented through a rich and extensive presentation of excerpts from classroom observations, student interviews, and a student writing activity, and describes the varying types of student links, how the links were prompted, the relationships between what the students were learning and what they already knew, and specific types of in-school links. The narrative includes how these links were supported or inhibited in the classroom, drawing on the roles of the teachers in the classrooms and what constituted authority sources of information in those classrooms. Before exploring the students' linking as a process of ongoing semiosis and how this process is part of a dynamic system, a study of the relationship between student knowledge links and achievement is shared. This rich narrative will be of interest to scholars and practitioners alike and includes an extensive appendix documenting the research methods.

Reclaiming Pedagogy Patricia Donahue, 1989 Besides the editors, the essayists are Lori Chamberlain, Michael Clark, Dennis A. Foster, Jon Klancher, Randall Knoper, Elaine O'Lees, Mariolina Salvatori, and Nina Schwartz. Donahue and Quandahl present accessible and exciting efforts to explore composition teaching in a new mode, perhaps a pristine paradigm of cultural criticism. Approximately half of the essays investigate the pedagogical agenda implied in the theories of a particular writer, Barthes, Lacan, or Burke, for example, and place such theories in the classroom. The remaining essays examine pedagogy as a critical practice. The book does not advocate a single method of instruction but instead reminds us that theory is itself continually modified by the classroom.
