Improving household consumption and expenditure surveys' food consumption metrics

Fiedler, John L., Mwangi, Dena M., 2016-11-18 As the nature of global malnutrition changes there is a growing need and increasing urgency for more and better information about food consumption and dietary patterns The past two decades have seen a dramatic increase in the number availability and analysis of the food consumption data collected in a variety of multipurpose household surveys referred to collectively as household consumption and expenditure surveys HCESs These surveys are heterogeneous and their quality varies substantially by country Still they share some common shortcomings in their measurement of food consumption nutrient intakes and nutrition status that undermine their relevance and reliability for purposes of designing and implementing food policies and programs This review crafts a strategic approach to the unfinished global agenda of improving HCESs collection of food consumption data Starting with the priority studies recommended by a 100 country HCES review Smith Dupriez and Troubat 2014 it focuses on a strategic subset of those studies that deal most directly and exclusively with the measurement of food and that are of fundamental importance to all HCES stakeholders in low and middle income countries Drawing from the literature this study provides a more detailed more circumspect justification as to why these particular studies are needed while identifying key hypotheses explaining why these studies are of growing urgency and demonstrating why now is a propitious time for undertaking them The review also identifies important study design considerations while pointing out potential challenges to successful implementation stemming from technical capacity economic administrative and political considerations Six key studies are rank ordered from a global perspective as follows taking into account 1 the likely shared consensus that a topic is an important source of measurement error in estimating consumption 2 the perceived urgency of the need for addressing a particular source of measurement error 3 the perceived likelihood of success that is that the efforts will improve the accuracy of measurement 4 whether or not the study entails modifying the questionnaire 5 the ease with which a study may begin and 6 the extent to which the study is independent of necessary negotiations with existing HCES stakeholders because of the types of changes it is likely to entail in either the questionnaire or the way the data have traditionally been processed Bibliography of Agriculture ,1990

Mountain agriculture: Opportunities for harnessing Zero Hunger in Asia Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2019-08-07 Mountain food security and nutrition are core issues that can contribute positively to the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals but paradoxically are often ignored in Zero Hunger and poverty reduction related agenda Under the overall leadership of Jos Graziano da Silva the Former Director General of FAO sustainable mountain agriculture development is set as a priority in Asia and the Pacific to effectively address this issue and assist Member Countries in tackling food insecurity and malnutrition in mountain regions This comprehensive publication is the first of its kind that focuses on the multidimensional status challenges opportunities and solutions of sustainable mountain agriculture development for Zero Hunger in Asia This publication is building on the International Workshop and Regional Expert Consultation on Mountain Agriculture Development and Food Security and Nutrition Governance held by FAO RAP and UIR in November 2018 Beijing in collaboration with partners from national governments national agriculture institutes universities international organizations and international research institutes The publication provides analysis with evidence on how mountain agriculture could contribute to satisfying all four dimensions of food security to transform food systems to be nutrition sensitive climate resilient economically viable and locally adaptable From this food system perspective the priority should be given to focus on specialty mountain product identification e g Future Smart Food production processing marketing and consumption which would effectively expose the potential of mountain agriculture to contribute to Zero Hunger and poverty reduction In addition eight Asian country case studies not only identify context specific challenges within biophysical technical policy socio economic and institutional dimensions Bulletin of the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics ,1994

Bureau of Labor Statistics,2000-02 African Indigenous Vegetables in Urban Agriculture Charlie M. Shackleton,Margaret W. Pasquini,Axel W. Drescher,2009-09-02 This book provides a comprehensive synthesis of current knowledge of the potential and challenges associated with the multiple roles use management and livelihood contributions of indigenous vegetables in urban agriculture in sub Saharan Africa There has been growing research and policy effort around urban agriculture in the region over the last two decades but never has it been integrated with work on under researched crops such as indigenous vegetables These species have multiple advantages including low input requirements adaptability to African environments high nutritional value and marked biodiversity cultural and local food security significance Yet they are overlooked in the modern world where recent emphasis has been directed to growing a limited range of exotic crops both for internal markets and for export to developed country markets This book provides evidence that in spite of this neglect in many African cities indigenous vegetables are still widely used cultivated and marketed It goes on to consider their potential to contribute to income generation and poverty alleviation of the growing numbers of urban dwellers in sub Saharan Africa whilst promoting urban greening and sustainability Based on critical analysis of the debates it presents a multidisciplinary analysis of the realities and future opportunities Federal Grants and Contracts for Unclassified Research in the Life Sciences National Science Foundation (U.S.),1955 Issue for Fiscal year 1954 accompanied by separately published section with title Projects listed by agencies Federal Grants and Contracts for Unclassified Research in the Life Sciences,1955
