First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70 Diversity and Adaptation in Fish Behaviour Miles H.A. Keenleyside,2012-12-06 Fish are extremely successful vertebrates Because of a long and divergent history they are now found in almost every conceivable aquatic habitat This radiation has been accompanied by great diversity in structure physiology and behaviour Despite this variability fish must solve a number of basic problems that are common to all animals The most important of these are 1 to find and ingest appropriate food 2 to avoid predation and 3 to reproduce The main purpose of this book is to describe the variety of behavioural strategies that fish use in coping with these problems My approach has been to draw together material from both field and laboratory work that is widely scattered in the literature The major emphasis is on field studies since my main concern is with adaptive solutions to problems and I believe these are most likely to be correctly perceived by workers who are familiar with the natural ecological setting of their animals Of course many details of behaviour cannot be seen and quantified adequately in the field and therefore I have not ignored laboratory studies However even here I have concentrated on work that illustrates the variety of solutions that fish use to solve the three basic problems Much important work for instance on causation development and learning is not included
