Luo Biological Dictionary J. O. Kokwaro, Timothy Johns, 1998 This highly illustrated and definitive dictionary by two renowned biologists one Kenyan one Canadian contains extensive coverage of the flora fauna and animals of the Lake Victoria region of East Africa occupied by the Luo community and is based on ten years of research by the authors It is an expansion of the 1972 publication Luo English Botanical Dictionary of Plant Names and Their Uses and now provides more botanical entries and an additional section consisting of a zoological dictionary The individual entry comprises Luo terminology its botanical zoological equivalent common name when applicable physical description its prevalence and its respective economic use Luo Biological Dictionary ,1998 Classification of East African Crops Kokwaro, John O., 2015-03-16 Classification of East African Crops is a revised modern version of a book first published in 1979 It is a handbook grouping the crops timber and common ornamental plants found in East Africa into 26 classes The plants are discussed under two broad categories namely usage and commercial classifications the Type A group of plants based on usage classification has 19 classes including the famous categories such as cereals fruits vegetables legumes oil crops fiber crops and forage and fodder plants amongst others The Type B group based on commercial use of the plants covers food crops cash crops commercial horticultural crops forbidden crops drug plants and bee forage or useful plants for honey bees Each class has a full or brief discussion of the crops or useful plants grown in modern East Africa covering Kenya Tanzania Uganda Rwanda and Burundi The most important part of the handbook is the list of all major and minor crops and useful plants in each class containing the English or trade names the botanical names and the families to which they belong The book has over 70 selected colour plates illustrating different crops and other useful plants It is an excellent handbook for university and college scholars students and researchers in agriculture forestry environment and animal husbandry

Dholuo-English Dictionary Asenath Odaga, 2005 Eating and Healing Andrea Pieroni, Lisa Price, 2006-03-15 Discover neglected wild food sources that can also be used as medicine The long standing notion of food as medicine medicine as food can be traced back to Hippocrates Eating and Healing Traditional Food As Medicine is a global overview of wild and semi domesticated foods and their use as medicine in traditional s Legacies of Departed African Women Writers Helen O. Chukwuma, Chioma Carol Opara, 2022-08-29 Legacies of Departed African Women Writers Matrix of Creativity and Power proffers varied perspectives of the invaluable contributions of ten deceased African writers from all across Africa who have cleared the path to a vibrant African feminist arena The dynamics of change gleaned from both their textual and contextual concerns unarguably set the pace for contemporary African women writers who have striven to follow in the footsteps of their literary mothers as well as their oral foremothers This book edited by Helen Chukwuma and Chioma Carol Opara shows the collective testament of ample creativity and power generated by these departed heroes Flora Nwapa Mariama Ba Grace Ogot Zulu Sofola Bessie Head Buchi Emecheta Nawal El Saadawi Assia Djebar Yvonne Vera and Nadine Gordimer These chapters revolve around the positive impact of the celebrated writers on creative writing theoretical formulations and socio cultural change The contributors argue that these corpuses of works have illuminated creativity rooted in power vision and freedom

Ethnoecology Virginia D. Nazarea,1999-01-01 The re emerging field of ethnoecology offers a promising way to document and analyze human environment interactions Case studies by international experts explore the varied views of scholars on the human dimension of conservation and the different views of local peoples regarding their own environments Filled with peoples voices from North and South America Africa and Asia these cases cover a range of issues natural resource conservation and sustainable development the relationship between local knowledge and biodiversity the role of the commons in development and the importance of diversity and equity in environmental management Ethnoecology Situated Knowledge Located Lives is intended for a wide range of specialists not only in social and natural sciences but also in agricultural studies It conveys the overriding importance of this powerful methodological approach in providing insiders perspectives on their environments and how they manage them

The Land Is Dying Paul Wenzel Geissler,Ruth Jane Prince,2010-06-01 Based on several years of ethnographic fieldwork the book explores life in and around a Luo speaking village in western Kenya during a time of death The epidemic of HIV AIDS affects every aspect of sociality and pervades villagers debates about the past the future and the ethics of everyday life Central to such debates is a discussion of touch in the broad sense of concrete material contact between persons In mundane practices and in ritual acts touch is considered to be key to the creation of bodily life as well as social continuity Underlying the significance of material contact is its connection with growth of persons and groups animals plants and the land and the forward movement of life more generally Under the pressure of illness and death economic hardship and land scarcity as well as bitter struggles about the relevance and application of Christianity and Luo tradition in daily life people find it difficult to agree about the role of touch in engendering growth or indeed about the aims of growth itself

The Gospel Sounds Like the Witch's Spell Kiyoshi Umea,2022-02-10 The Gospel Sounds Like the Witch s Spell is a highly detailed ethnography about how the Jopadhola in eastern Uganda talk about interpret and cope with death illness and other misfortunes The book presents a provocative discussion that critiques the idea of the revival of witchcraft in the neo liberalised contemporary world as represented by the modernity model of witchcraft and attempts to formulate a spiderweb model that connects witchcraft to contemporary society in a more complex manner The book is a unique ethnography of the collective memory of indigenous knowledge and local historicity The author moves the reader from curse to misfortune to fortune as he plots the notion of curse as deeply embedded in the Adhola way of life He weaves between culture religion state and modernity with lived experience Did the concept of witchcraft unwittingly endear the Adhola to the Christian way of life because of the presence of the notion of curse in the Bible or make them less susceptible to the vagaries of modernity compared to their neighbours These are some of the questions that the author puts on the table in a deeply reflective manner The phenomenon of witchcraft is given an intriguing

angle that invites the reader to reexamine earlier anthropological writings on the subject among African peoples

Eating on the Wild Side Nina L. Etkin, 2000-11-01 People have long used wild plants as food and medicine and for a myriad of other important cultural applications While these plants and the foraging activities associated with them have been dismissed by some observers as secondary or supplementary or even backward their contributions to human survival and well being are more significant than is often realized Eating on the Wild Side spans the history of human plant interactions to examine how wild plants are used to meet medicinal nutritional and other human needs Drawing on nonhuman primate studies evidence from prehistoric human populations and field research among contemporary peoples practicing a range of subsistence strategies the book focuses on the processes and human ecological implications of gathering semidomestication and cultivation of plants that are unfamiliar to most of us Contributions by distinguished cultural and biological anthropologists paleobotanists primatologists and ethnobiologists explore a number of issues such as the consumption of unpalatable and famine foods the comparative assessment of aboriginal diets with those of colonists and later arrivals and the apparent self treatment by sick chimpanzees with leaves shown to be pharmacologically active Collectively these articles offer a theoretical framework emphasizing the cultural evolutionary processes that transform plants from wild to domesticated with many steps in between while placing wild plant use within current discussions surrounding biodiversity and its conservation Eating on the Wild Side makes an important contribution to our understanding of the links between biology and culture describing the interface between diet medicine and natural products By showing how various societies have successfully utilized wild plants it underscores the growing concern for preserving genetic diversity as it reveals a fascinating chapter in the human ecology
