Aesthetic Response and Traditional Social Valuation in Euripides' ›Electra‹

Nicholas Baechle,2020-06-22 Euripides Electra opened up for its audience an opportunity to become self aware as to the appeal of tragic Kunstsprache it both reflected and sustained traditional aristocratically inflected assumptions about the continuity of appearance and substance even in a radical democracy A complex analogy between social and aesthetic valuation is played out and brought to light The characterization of Orestes early in the play demonstrates how social appearances made clear the identity of well born and how they were still assumed to indicate superior virtue and agency On the aesthetic side of the analogy one of the functions of tragic diction as an essential indication of heroic character and agency comes into view in a dramatic and thematic sequence that begins with Achilles ode and ends with the planning of the murders Serious doubts are created as to whether Orestes will realize the assumed potential inherent in his heroic genealogy and at the same time as to whether the components of his character as an aesthetic construct are congruent with such qualities and agency Both sides of this complex analogy are thus problematized and at a metapoetic level its nature and bases are exposed for reflection
