Major European Governments Jorgen Scott Rasmussen, Joel C. Moses, 1994      The British Conservative Government and the European Exchange Rate Mechanism, 1979-1994 Helen Thompson, 1996 This text systematically traces the development of the British Conservative government's policy to the European Exchange Rate Mechanism from 1979 to 1994 The book provides information and insight into the development of ERM policy which led to the downfall and discredit of the Conservative leadership Revealing dramatic episodes in the progress of the policy including a full account of the deterioration in the relationship between Margaret Thatcher and Nigel Lawson the author shows how the Thatcher government was torn apart and the credibility of the Major government undermined      The Middle East United States. Governments of Greater European Powers Herman Finer, 1956      European Security Richard Rose, 2025-01-09 Exploring the ebb and flow of European security from the end of the Second World War to the present day Richard Rose examines why security cannot be taken for granted today and what this means for the future of security in Europe Since 1949 military security from the Black Sea to Washington's Potomac River has been guaranteed by NATO with the White House in command He reminds us that masses of Europeans enjoyed unprecedented economic security as the European Union has replaced competition in armaments with competition in a single European market The fall of the Berlin Wall and the Soviet Union restructured the map of Europe and encouraged the United States to turn toward China However Vladimir Putin's attempt to revive a Soviet style version of security by invading Ukraine has stimulated aid to Ukraine as it fights a proxy war to protect the security of Europe Looking ahead Rose asks whether European governments are able to defend themselves as

America's commitment to Europe becomes less reliable the challenge to Europe of helping fund the reconstruction of Ukraine questions the conditions in which the European Union and NATO could admit Ukraine as a member and sets out where Britain fits in as a NATO but not an EU member state

The future of NATO and European defence Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Defence Committee, 2008-03-20 This report is presented prior to the NATO Summit at Bucharest in April 2008 and examines the status of NATO in dealing with the security environment that exists in Europe today The situation in Afghanistan offers a key test of the strengths and failings of the NATO Alliance To bring stability and encourage development and reconstruction in this region requires a long term military and financial commitment on the part of the Alliance Failure in Afghanistan may diminish the effectiveness of NATO and undermine allied unity perhaps pushing the United States to question the purpose of NATO itself The Bucharest Summit will have to address a number of issues in respect of Afghanistan including the need to generate sufficient military forces to carry out operations NATO faces broader questions about its role and relevance in the 21st century and the Defence Committee believes it needs to launch a far reaching review of its strategic concept setting forth a future role and purpose NATO's willingness to fulfil a global role is critical to the continued support of the United States NATO has shortfalls across a range of specific military capabilities which are seen as compromising its ability to mount and sustain the expeditionary operations that underpin the Alliance The creation of the NATO Response Force is seen as representing a significant achievement but it needs to be financed out of NATO Common Funding The Committee states that NATO's biggest shortfall is a lack of political will where a large and growing gap exists between the United States and the European members in defence spending The Committee further states that the relationship between NATO and the EU is plagued by mistrust and characterised by unhealthy competition Improving communication and coordination between the two is seen as essential The Committee views NATO as indispensable to the Alliance

The World and Yugoslavia's Wars Richard Henry Ullman, 1996 What can outside powers do now to help heal the terrible wounds caused by Yugoslavia's wars Why did the victors in the Cold War and the 1991 Gulf War not act to stop the slaughter The nature scope and meaning of the actions and inactions of outsiders is the subject of this book

High-Tech Europe Wayne Sandholtz, Associate Professor of Political Science Wayne Sandholtz, 1992-01-01 A study of cooperative efforts in the high tech industries of Europe Sandholtz examines why collaboration came late to these countries how protective walls came down how countries work together in economically sensitive areas Governments have recognized for decades the dynamic role played by microelectronics computers and telecommunications in the modern economy Although Europe's deficiencies in these crucial sectors had long been acknowledged it was not until the 1980s that European nations began collaborating to develop and promote high tech industries Their collaboration gives rise to many questions Why for example did the joint efforts come at such a late date rather than in the 1960s or 70s And how is it possible that they work together in economically sensitive areas These questions point to fundamental issues in the areas of international cooperation international institutions and technology policy Before the institution of the collaborative programs ESPRIT European Strategic Programme for Research and Development in Information Technology RACE R D in Advanced Communications technologies in Europe and EUREKA European Research Coordination Agency in the 1980s each European country sought its own technological renaissance through protection of national firms behind walls of technical standards procurement preferences and research subsidies Here is a thorough carefully researched work that examines the breakdown of these walls It will appeal to political scientists economists and scholars of technology and Western Europe interested in the political contours of the high tech landscape

The Struggle for Asia 1828-1914 David Gillard,2023-05-03 The Struggle for Asia 1828 1914 1977 studies a classic case of rival imperialisms British leaders tended to believe that Russian expansion threatened India Russian leaders came to believe in a British threat to their empire Each sought security by trying to control the policies of weaker states which lay between their imperial frontiers and on whose alignment depended the balance of power By 1914 when both felt even more threatened by Germany than by one another Russia seemed to have gained the upper hand in a struggle for hegemony in Asia which had been crucial for the course of world politics This book examines the intellectual origins of the Great Game

Britain Faces Europe Robert L. Pfaltzgraff, Jr.,2016-11-11 Transformations of thought among British foreign policy makers since World War II have motivated this new study For the first time in its history during the postwar decade Britain began to abandon its world power outlook and to turn toward a European consensus substituting regional interests for its global perspective The author asks How does a people so attuned to worldwide interests and commitments reconcile itself to such drastically altered circumstances as those that followed World War II How does a people that has historically viewed with hostility the unification of continental Europe develop as a top foreign priority participation in the European integration movement The book focuses on the response of the British Government to changing international and domestic forces including elite groups at home Britain Faces Europe is the first book to examine both the development of British policy and the evolution of attitudes in the British private sector toward European integration between 1957 and 1967 Drawing on public documents and interviews the author traces the movement of British policy toward a more European outlook Investigating publications of interest groups such as the National Farmers Union the Trades Union Congress the Confederation of British Industry and such Europe oriented groups as Federal Union and the United Kingdom Council for Europe the author traces the development of support for Common Market membership in the private sector Developing attitudes in representative British newspapers and journals and those of parliamentary parties are described Publications and statements of anti European organizations and public opinion polls are also examined Important elements of the study for all students and observers of world affairs are its examination of British expectations from European integration and its assessment of the British Common Market case from propositions about integration drawn from theoretically oriented literature The book is an innovation in approach in that other studies have focused almost exclusively on descriptions of official policy without major reference to either the private sector or theories of integration at the international level
