Bernard Shaw and Modern Advertising Christopher Wixson, 2018-06-13 This book charts how promotional campaigns in which Bernard Shaw participated were key crucibles within which agency and personality could re negotiate their relationship to one another and to the consuming public Concurrent with the rise of modern advertising the creation of Shaw s G B S public persona was achieved through masterful imitation of patent medicine marketing strategies and a shrewd understanding of the relationship between product and spokesman Helping to enhance the visibility of his literary writing and dovetailing with his Fabian political activities G B S also became a key figure in the evolution of testimonial endorsement and the professionalizing of modern advertising The study analyzes multiple ad series in which Shaw was prominently featured that were occasions for self promotion for both Shaw and the agencies and presage the iconoclastic style of contemporary public personality and techniques of celebrity marketing

Making and Selling Culture Richard Ohmann, 1996-11-25 An inside look at cultural industries featuring interviews with key players from such companies as Twentieth Century Fox National Public Radio and Coca Cola To what extent do moviemakers television and radio producers advertising executives and marketers merely reflect trends beliefs and desires that already exist in our culture and to what extent do they consciously shape our culture to their own ends In depth interviews with ten executives from the culture industry and five scholarly analyses examine that question and address the issues of power and authority meaning and identity that arise when cultural producers define and react to audiences In their own words leaders from companies like

Twentieth Century Fox National Public Radio and Warner Bros Television describe their perception of the sometimes paradoxical relationship between culture and what influences it. For example, while the former president of Coca-Cola North America claims the company has never tried to create a trend, he notes that we market in more countries than belong to the United Nations, a product that has insinuated itself into the lives of the people to a point where it has become you know it's there. These reflections by key players provide an unprecedented view as editor Richard Ohmann writes into the ways cultural producers imagine or know markets and how such knowledge figures in their decisions about what events, experiences, and products to make.

Advertising at War Inger L. Stole, 2012-11-16. Advertising at War challenges the notion that advertising disappeared as a political issue in the United States in 1938 with the passage of the Wheeler-Lea Amendment to the Federal Trade Commission Act, the result of more than a decade of campaigning to regulate the advertising industry. Inger L. Stole suggests that the war experience, even more than the legislative battles of the 1930s, defined the role of advertising in U.S. postwar political economy and the nation's cultural firmament. She argues that Washington and Madison Avenue were soon working in tandem with the creation of the Advertising Council in 1942, a joint effort established by the Office of War Information, the Association of National Advertisers, and the American Association of Advertising Agencies. Using archival sources, newspapers, accounts, and trade publications, Stole demonstrates that the war elevated and magnified the seeming contradictions of advertising and allowed critics of these practices one final opportunity to corral and regulate the institution of advertising. Exploring how New Dealers and consumer advocates such as the Consumers Union battled the advertising industry, Advertising at War traces the debate over two basic policy questions: whether advertising should continue to be a tax-deductible business expense during the war and whether the government should require effective standards and labeling for consumer products, which would render most advertising irrelevant. Ultimately, the postwar climate of political intolerance and reverence for free enterprise quashed critical investigations into the advertising industry. While advertising could be criticized or lampooned, the institution itself became inviolable.

Commercial Intimacy Richard Popp, Brenton Malin, Wendy A. Woloson, 2025-06-03. Explores how marketers have leveraged feelings of personal familiarity in modern consumer capitalism. Our wired world connects us with corporations in ways that just a generation ago would have been hard to imagine. Marketers track users' habits down to the swipe and scroll; brand influencers reach out to followers in ever more personal ways. Yet, however much we may feel individually recognized or targeted by today's marketers, the connections they make are in truth fleeting and tactical. They are also nothing new. Marketplace transactions have long been mediated by interactions that blur the line between the putatively public and rational world of commerce and the supposedly private and emotional realm of personal relations. That there is an affective tenor to every sales scenario has never been a secret to talented marketers. How exactly marketers have tried to set those moods by endowing commercial relationships with an aura of personal affinity is the subject of Commercial Intimacy. Its chapters explore the broad theme of commercial intimacy that is market based feelings of spatial and emotional closeness in US consumer culture from the mid nineteenth century to the late twentieth century They show how experiences of intimacy have been orchestrated by marketers operating at a variety of distances from the face to face solicitations made by retail clerks and direct sales agents to the long distance appeals made by mail order merchants print and TV advertisers telemarketers and e commerce platforms The volume pays especially close attention to how these revenue minded acts of ingratiation worked how they were shaped by the technologies behind them and how they capitalized on contemporary dynamics of gender and sexuality At the heart of this volume then is the question of how our understanding of business history changes when we take the emotional sensational and affective dynamics of intimacy to be foundational elements of commercial persuasion Contributors Samuel Backer Jennifer M Black Donna J Drucker Isabelle Marina Held Julie A Johnson Lindsay Mitchell Keiter Stephanie Kolberg Brenton J Malin Cynthia B Meyers Richard K Popp Nicole E Weber Wendy A Woloson

Buyways Catherine Gudis, 2004-05-15 The highway has become the buyway Along the millions of miles the public travels advertisers spend billions on images of cola cars vodka fast food and swimming pools that blur past us catching our fleeting attention and turning the landscape into a corridor of commerce A smart succinct and visually compelling history of the billboard in America Buyways traces how the outdoor advertising industry changed the face of American commercialism Taking us from itinerant bill stickers of circus posters in the 19th century to the blinking beeping 3 D eyesores of today Gudis argues that roadside advertising has turned the landscape itself into a commodity to be bought and sold as advertising space Buyways vividly chronicles the battles between environmentalists and businessmen as well as the response of artists from New Deal photographers who satirized the billboard infested landscape to commercial artists who embraced the kitsch of it all It also shows how advertisers tapped into the American mythology of the open road promoting mobile consumption as the American Dream on four wheels Entertaining and brilliantly illustrated Buyways is a vibrant road map of the new geography of consumption Also includes an eight page color insert
