Kramer, 2004-09-22 In this book some of the world s leading scholars come together to describe their thinking and research on the topic of the psychology of leadership Most of the chapters were originally presented as papers at a research conference held in 2001 at the Kellogg School of Management of Northwestern University The contributions span traditional social psychological areas as well as organizational theory examining leadership as a psychological process and as afforded by organizational constraints and opportunities The editors goal was not to focus the chapters on a single approach to the study and conceptualization of leadership but rather to display the diversity of issues that surround the topic Leadership scholars have identified a host of approaches to the study of leadership What are the personal characteristics of leaders What is the nature of the relation between leaders and followers Why do we perceive some people to be better leaders than others What are the circumstances that evoke leadership qualities in people Can leadership be taught And so on The contributions to this book examine these important questions and fall into three categories conceptions of leadership factors that influence the effectiveness of leadership and the consequences and effects of leadership on the leader All in all the chapters of this volume display part of a broad spectrum of novel and important

Parent-School Conflict Management: Research, Theory and Practice Professor John Kanjogu Kiumi, 2019-12-23 Education empowers individuals with knowledge skills and values which in turn enables them to build a better world Since the school is the primary context within which education takes place it follows that parents and teachers must work in harmony so as to maximize children's learning gains. The process of parent school interaction however has the potential to generate conflict due to differing perspectives between teachers and parents on how best to educate children. This brings to the fore a number of questions: How can headteachers manage these conflicts productively since their role expectation is to provide quality leadership so as to enhance the school's capacity to deliver on its mandate? Are there personal factors that are likely to influence the choice of parent school conflict management styles by headteachers? These are the two questions that Prof J Kanjogu sought to answer in this book. The book is a product of field based research in public primary schools in Nyahururu sub county Kenya. The book will be useful to school managers, teachers, parents, education researchers and teacher education institutions given that they teach courses in school management.
