Drooker,1992-09-30 Because textiles rarely are preserved in the archaeological record outside of deserts and permafrost areas in many regions of the world very little is known about their characteristics functions production technology or socioeconomic importance While this fact is also true of organic fabrics produced during the Mississippian period in southeastern North America a wide variety of Mississippian textiles has been preserved in the form of impressions on large pottery vessels From attribute analysis of 1 574 fabrics impressed on Wickliffe pottery sherds and comparison of the impressions with extant Mississippian textile artifacts Drooker presents the first comparative analysis of these materials and the most inclusive available summary of information on Mississippian textiles Archaeology of the Mississippian Culture Peter N. Peregrine,2013-04-11 First published in 1996 In recent years there has been a general increase of scholarly and popular interest in the study of ancient civilizations Yet because archaeologists and other scholars tend to approach their study of ancient peoples and places almost exclusively from their own disciplinary perspectives there has long been a lack of general bibliographic and other research resources available for the non specialist This series is intended to fill that need Textiles and the Medieval Economy Angela Ling Huang,Carsten Jahnke,2014-06-30 Archaeologists and textile historians bring together 16 papers to investigate the production trade and consumption of textiles in Scandinavia and across parts of northern and Mediterranean Europe throughout the medieval period Archaeological evidence is used to demonstrate the existence or otherwise of international trade and to examine the physical characteristics of textiles and their distribution in order to understand who was producing using and trading them and what they were being used for Historical evidence mainly textual is employed to link textile names to places numbers and prices and thus provide an appreciation of changing economics patterns of distribution and the organisation of trade Different types and qualities of cloths are discussed and the social implications of their production and import export considered against a developing background of urbanism and increasing commercial wealth Forging Southeastern Identities Gregory A. Rautman,2016-11-11 Classical and anthropological archaeologists share many of the same interests and confront many of the same problems studying extinct cultures Despite differences in background and training scholars in these disciplines are all engaged in analyzing and interpreting the archaeological record Traditionally however there have been few opportunities for classical archaeologists and anthropologists to discuss mutually beneficial perspectives in method and theory The study of gender and its representations affords an opportunity for archaeologists and anthropologists to share information and increase our understanding of how people lived in the past Reading the Body contains current anthropological and archaeological research about the body and the archaeological record both physical remains and artistic representations from sites all over the world ranging in time from the European

Native American Landscapes Cheryl Claassen,2024-01-12 This collection of essays focuses on what Cheryl Claassen terms the multi vocal landscape the idea that different groups and genders look upon the same natural features but perceive different meanings and potential in what they are seeing Through ten chapters various contributors showcase the ways in which native peoples see and interact with the natural world At the heart of this book is the idea that Europeans associated nature with the feminine and saw the natural world as a passive frontier to be dominated Native Americans however looked at landscape differently They saw nature as a place in which to engage in complex negotiations between spirits and humans This approach to nature cemented a relationship to the land based more on a partnership rather than subjugation These essays deepen our understanding of the interaction between native people and the land While other books focus on the gendered gaze of European men upon the landscape this collection emphasizes that native men and native women looked upon natural formations and constructed landscapes differently from one another a difference in perception that is important for archaeologists and anthropologists to understand While there have been advances toward admitting this more complex view in the rest of the world Native American Landscapes is the first to focus on how native men and women viewed the world around them Native American Landscapes is organized by region taking readers across the country from the rock shelters of the Cumberland Plateau in the east to the Mojave Desert and the Mexican Gulf Coast then north to what is now British Columbia and farther west to Hawaii Readers of this collection through a study of creation myths vision quests fertility shrines and other ritualized uses of landscape will learn more about the land and about humans perception of our natural surroundings which forms the bedrock of our present relationship with the natural world CHERYL CLAASSEN is professor of anthropology at Appalachian State University She is the author or editor of six books on Native American prehistory including Feasting with Shellfish in the Southern Ohio Valley Shells Rituals and Beliefs in Archaic North America and Women in Prehistory North America and Mesoamerica Visualizing the Sacred George E. Lankford, F. Kent

Reilly, James F. Garber, 2014-05-23 The prehistoric native peoples of the Mississippi River Valley and other areas of the Eastern Woodlands of the United States shared a complex set of symbols and motifs that constituted one of the greatest artistic traditions of the pre Columbian Americas Traditionally known as the Southeastern Ceremonial Complex these artifacts of copper shell stone clay and wood were the subject of the groundbreaking 2007 book Ancient Objects and Sacred Realms Interpretations of Mississippian Iconography which presented a major reconstruction of the rituals cosmology ideology and political structures of the Mississippian peoples Visualizing the Sacred advances the study of Mississippian iconography by delving into the regional variations within what is now known as the Mississippian Iconographic Interaction Sphere MIIS Bringing archaeological ethnographic ethnohistoric and iconographic perspectives to the analysis of Mississippian art contributors from several disciplines discuss variations in symbols and motifs among major sites and regions across a wide span of time and also consider what visual symbols reveal about elite status in diverse political environments These findings represent the first formal identification of style regions within the Mississippian Iconographic Interaction Sphere and call for a new understanding of the MIIS as a network of localized yet interrelated religious systems that experienced both continuity and change over time

Caborn-Welborn David Pollack, 2004-08-19 An important case study of chiefdom collapse and societal reemergence Caborn Welborn a late Mississippian A D 1400 1700 farming society centered at the confluence of the Ohio and Wabash Rivers in what is now southwestern Indiana southeastern Illinois and northwestern Kentucky developed following the collapse of the Angel chiefdom A D 1000 1400 Using ceramic and settlement data David Pollack examines the ways in which that new society reconstructed social political and economic relationships from the remnants of the Angel chiefdom Unlike most instances of the demise of a complex society led by elites the Caborn Welborn population did not become more inward looking as indicated by an increase in extraregional interaction nor did they disperse to smaller more widely scattered settlements as evidenced by a continuation of a hierarchy that included large villages This book makes available for the first time detailed well illustrated descriptions of Caborn Welborn ceramics identifies ceramic types and attributes that reflect Caborn Welborn interaction with Oneota tribal groups and central

Mississippi valley Mississippian groups and offers an internal regional chronology Based on intraregional differences in ceramic decoration the types of vessels interred with the dead and cemetery location Pollack suggests that in addition to the former Angel population Caborn Welborn society may have included households that relocated to the Ohio Wabash confluence from nearby collapsing polities and that Caborn Welborn s sociopolitical organization could be better considered as a riverine confederacy
