

Types of anarchism

There are four types of anarchism, divided into two broad categories:

Collectivist anarchism

- Philosophical roots of collectivist anarchism lies in Socialism. It is collectivist due to its belief that human beings are social - better off living together than alone - and the emphasis is placed on social solidarity or what Kropotkin called 'mutual aid'. They believe natural order is based on sympathy and harmony and that people are linked by common humanity, thus there is no need for regulation and control. Bakunin - "social solidarity is the first human law; freedom is the second law".
- Overlap between Anarchism and Socialism, particularly Marxism:
 - Both see capitalism and the state as evil and exploitative.
 - Both advocate revolutionary change, collective ownership and communal living.
 - Both advocate a harmonious social order without political authority.
- However, they differ for the following reasons:
 - How to transition from capitalism to communism. Marx advocated the 'dictatorship of the proletariat' as a transitional phase until the state 'wither, away', while collectivist anarchists advocate a spontaneous transition.
 - Anarchists see no distinction between the bourgeois state and the proletarian state. They believe both are evil and corrupting.
 - Anarchists reject revisionist socialism viewing it as a contradiction in terms; (1) Impossible to humanise capitalism. (2) Impossible to achieve equality via oppressive state.
