Agriculture and Intellectual Property Rights V. Santaniello,R. E. Evenson,D. Zilberman,G. A. Carlson,2000-07-14 This book presents the perspectives of policy makers and economists on a highly topical subject Plant breeding patents the ownership of biological innovation and associated intellectual property rights IPR are the subject of increased attention worldwide They are particularly relevant in the field of agricultural biotechnology but until recently evoked little policy analysis IPRs are particularly relevant in the field of agricultural biotechnology They are issues affecting public and private sector organizations and companies and are significant for developing as well as developed countries Intellectual Property and Traditional Knowledge in the Global Economy Teshager W. Dagne,2014-09-04 Arising from recent developments at the international level many developing countries indigenous peoples and local communities are considering using geographical indications GIs to protect traditional knowledge and to promote trade and overall economic development Despite the considerable enthusiasm over GIs in diverse quarters there is an appreciable lack of research on how far and in what context GIs can be used as a protection model for traditional knowledge based resources This book critically examines the potential uses of geographical indications as models for protecting traditional knowledge based products and resources in national and international intellectual property legal frameworks By analysing the reception towards GIs from developing countries and advocates of development in the various legal and non legal regimes including the World Trade Organization World Intellectual Property Organization and the Convention on Biological Diversity and the Food and Agricultural Organization the book evaluates the development potential of GIs in relation to ensuing changes in international intellectual property law in accommodating traditional knowledge Teshager W Dagne argues for a degree of balance in the approach to the implementation of global intellectual property rights in a manner that gives developing countries an opportunity to protect traditional knowledge based products The book will be of great interest and use to scholars and students of intellectual property law public international law traditional knowledge and global governance Intellectual Property Protection and Sustainable Development Philippe Cullet,2005 Intellectual Property, Human Rights and

Development Duncan Matthews,2011-01-01 Each chapter analyses both policy areas access to medicines and agriculture genetic resources These three exceptionally rich fieldwork based case studies constitute the meat and the principal contribution of this book The book marks a major contribution for the empirical material alone Ken Shadlen Journal of Development Studies Duncan Matthews has produced a first rate in depth analysis of the role of NGOs in international and national intellectual property policy Based on extensive primary research this book provides a smart thoughtful perspective on the role of key developing country NGOs NGOs relationships with national policymakers and with multilateral institutions Everyone interested in the interface of intellectual property policy and human rights development access to medicines farmers rights and biodiversity should read this compelling account I highly recommend this excellent contribution to our understanding Susan K Sell George Washington University US One of the features of international negotiations has been the increasing participation of non governmental organizations In this important book Duncan Matthews shows the nature and extent of NGO influence in the negotiations over intellectual property Written with great clarity and drawing on interview data and case studies the book will be valuable to both scholars and practitioners working in international negotiation Peter Drahos Australian National University This book reveals how non governmental organizations helped developing countries to better understand and mitigate the impact of the new standards of intellectual property protection that those countries were forced to adopt in the context of trade negotiations Based on comprehensive and rigorous research the author offers an outstanding piece that will not only be important for academics policy makers and students working in the area of intellectual property but also for those more broadly interested in the implementation of human rights coalition building scenarios and framing strategies Carlos Correa University of Buenos Aires Argentina This is a valuable corrective to a debate that is too often premised on the perspective of rich and developed countries Focussing on the network of NGOs that supports developing countries Duncan Matthews fills a major gap in the analysis of international disputes about intellectual property His analysis rightly demolishes the position that developing countries have remained helpless in the face of developments in the global governance of IPRs and helps explain how the global politics of IPRs is shifting Christopher May Lancaster University UK This insightful and important new book explores the role played by non governmental organizations NGOs in articulating concerns at the TRIPS Council the WIPO the WHO the CBD COP and the FAO that intellectual property rights can have negative consequences for developing countries Duncan Matthews describes how coalitions of international NGOs have influenced the way that the relationship between intellectual property rights and development is understood often framing the message as a human rights issue to emphasize these concerns and ensure that access to medicines food security and the rights of indigenous peoples over their traditional knowledge are protected Based on extensive research undertaken in Geneva and in developing countries the book also reveals how NGOs and broader social movements in Brazil India and South Africa have played a crucial role in addressing the negative impacts of intellectual property rights by using human rights law as a practical tool before national courts and when seeking to influence national legislation and government policy Intellectual Property Human Rights and Development will appeal to academics practitioners activists international negotiators and postgraduate students in intellectual property law human rights law the international political economy of intellectual property rights and development studies

Intellectual Property Rights Trade and Biodiversity Graham Dutfield, 2000-03-01 This text examines the international agreements governing trade in genetic resources crucial resources for world agriculture food security and large industries such as pharmaceuticals Intellectual Property Rights IPRs in these resources are critical for those involved in the trade including industry and developing countries The book analyzes the Convention on Biological Diversity CBD World Trade Organization agreements and other agreements It explains how they can be integrated into an equitable training regime Sustainable Resource Use Alex Smajgl, Silva Larson, 2012-06-25 The way that humans organize both resource access and resource use is vital to the management of natural resources Within different contexts institutional arrangements such as the rules of common and private property rights become levers by which human behaviours can be modified and steered towards the goals of sustainable natural resource management Featuring contributions from leading thinkers in the field this groundbreaking volume examines institutional dynamics from the perspective of natural resource management The book is organized into four parts The first discusses institutional diversity and contextual change Following this institutional misfit is analysed with a strong focus on the long term impacts of colonial structures in the Asia Pacific region The book then discusses experiences with institutional dynamics in order to ease the tension of such misfits before examining future research needs Ultimately through careful argument and by deploying original research the authors make the case that institutional arrangements cannot be perceived as a set of parameters that can be optimized and locked in for the most efficient functioning of a system nor can institutions be evaluated outside the context in which they were developed This is powerful thought provoking and important reading for academics researchers policy makers and professionals in resource institutional and environmental economics and land use planning and policy across the full range of natural resource sectors from forestry to agriculture Published with CSIRO Cover image Blue Flower of Life c Theresa J Richardson 2006 The WTO and Infant Industry Promotion in Developing Countries Juan He, 2014-09-25 The charter of the World Trade Organization WTO sets the tone that sustainable trade and economic development dominates multilateral trade negotiation and specific working agreements This book examines the novel challenge for developing countries to upgrade and optimize their industrial structure and trade composition by stimulating genuinely innovative and competitive industrial strength The book specifically explores the issue of infant industry promotion under the legal framework of the WTO treaties and case law Taking the regulatory measures and incentives China has used to build up a large civil aircraft supplier the book evaluates the key trade agreements relevant to infant industry promotional policies and practices such as product regulations and standards under the Agreement on Technical Barriers to Trade and export promotion policies under the Agreement on Subsidies and Countervailing Measures Juan He argues that the regulatory room prescribed by the multilateral trade rules of the WTO does not allow adequate space for developing countries to encourage new and technologically advanced areas of production and trade The author concludes by suggesting ways in which WTO rules could be modified to help enable developing countries industrialization In doing so the book highlights a need to investigate how localized and international policy trends can be reconciled and enhanced towards the common goal of development The book will be of great interest to scholars and students of international trade law Chinese studies international political economy and of great use to government agencies responsible for internal trade and industrial policy decisions The Regulation of Agricultural Biotechnology Robert E. Evenson, V. Santaniello, 2004-03-29 The regulatory systems in place prior to the development and expansion of agricultural biotechnology are still responding to this new form of technology. Such systems include trade law, intellectual property law, contract law, environmental regulations, and biosafety regulations. This book reviews these regulatory changes and consists of 24 chapters developed from papers presented at a conference of the International Consortium on Agricultural Biotechnology Research held in Italy in July 2002. It primarily considers the relationship between these changes and innovation, market development, and international trade.

In Patent and Trade Disparities in Developing Countries, Srividhya Ragavan examines the interaction between trade and intellectual property regimes using the patent regime in India as the focal point in an integrated developmental framework to determine how sustainable economic growth can be achieved in developing countries.

Evaluating Eden Series Dilys Roe, Environmental Law in Developing Countries Nazrul Islam, 2002. This publication contains four papers on different legal issues of interest to developing countries. The papers were researched and written by four Carl Duisberg Gesellschaft CDG Fellows who came to Germany from Bangladesh, Venezuela, Nigeria, and China to study under the host leadership of the IUCN Environmental Law Centre. Subjects chosen by these Fellows vary widely and cover ISO 14001, access to environmental justice in Latin America, patents and plant resources, related knowledge and law, and policy of the European Union on the reduction of greenhouse gas emissions and their significance to China.
