Regional Opportunities for Sustainable Development H.J. de Graaf, C.J. Musters, W.J. Ter Keurs, 2013-04-18 By their adoption of Agenda 21 most of the world's governments have acknowledged the need for sustainable development. This implies that new policies are needed focusing on economic, social, cultural, and ecological goals. At the same time, we also need to solve existing environmental and social problems and prevent the occurrence of new ones. This volume presents tests and illustrates a theoretically well-founded procedure for discovering regional opportunities for sustainable development based on a systems approach to decision making. The procedure takes as its starting point the needs of the people involved, relating these to the measurement of available resources in order to find opportunities for multiple resource use and sustainable development. The needs of future generations and broader communities are taken into account throughout. The book studies regional planning and the implementation of plans, offering guidance and support to parties involved in debates on sustainable development and improving the quality of their decision making.

vii INTRODUCTION CHAPTER 1 ECOLOGICAL ECONOMICS AND COASTAL ZONE ECOSYSTEMS VALUES AN OVERVIEW Turner R K Bateman I J and Adger W N 1 1 Coastal zone pressure and sustainable management challenges Given the continued intensification of the process of globalisation involving population growth, population density changes via urbanisation, industrial development, increased trade and capital flows, liberalisation of transnational corporation activity and lifestyle and attitudinal changes, coastal zones and their hydrologically linked catchment areas have come under heavy environmental pressure. The scale and extent of socio-economic activities have profound implications for the now coevolving natural and human systems and their complex interrelationships Turner Perrings and Folke 1997 The consequences of this process of change manifest themselves across a range of spatial and temporal scales Indeed the juxtaposition of different spatial functional and temporal scales that is inherent in the catchment coastal ecosystems seas oceans continuum poses particularly difficult challenges for both science and resource management governance Forests and Rural

Though development researchers have proven that the participation of women is necessary for effective sustainable development development practitioners still largely lack culturally appropriate gender sensitive tools for including women especially women living in poverty Current tools used in the development approach often favour the skill set of the development practitioner and are a mismatch with the traditional gendered knowledge and skills many women who are living in poverty do have This study explores three case studies from India Ethiopia and the Guatemala that have successfully used applied theatre for women's participation in sustainable development This interdisciplinary book has the opportunity to be the first to bring together the theory scholarship and practice of theatre for women's participation in sustainable development in an international context This work will be of great interest to scholars and practitioners in a wide variety of fields who are looking for creative solutions for utilizing the contributions of women for solving our global goals to live in a

Introduction to Sustainability Nolberto Munier, 2005-06-17 Sustainability relates with Economics Society and Environment However one common fact that links them all is the generation of waste This chapter is divided into two The first part analyses the current generation of waste as well as its treatment The second intends to establish policies for the future treatment of waste or better yet for ceasing the generation of waste This first part begins by raising some capital questions What is waste Which are the components of waste Where is waste generated and How is waste treated The second part will deal with Why is waste produced and What is society doing to correct this problem

2 2 First part Current generation and treatment of waste

2 2 1 What is waste The dictionary defines waste as something useless unwanted or defective and the word by product as something produced in an industrial or biological process in addition to the principal product From the point of view of sustainability the word waste does not have that meaning as though it may be unwanted it is not something useless and is certainly not defective Even if in a manufacturing process a product or part of it does not conform to the manufacturer s quality specs it does not thereby become waste but is rather scrap material that is usually brought back to its original state and then processed again
