Twentieth-Century Western Philosophy of Religion 1900-2000 Eugene Thomas Long,2012-12-06 In the fall of 1994 Hendrik Jan van Leusen an acquisitions editor from Kluwer Academic Publishers visited me in my home to discuss a proposal for a handbook in the philosophy of religion He reported that he had been talking about this with philosophers of religion at several universities and that the response to the idea had been quite favorable I suggested that given the dif ferent

approaches to the philosophy of religion it might be good for him to meet with philosophers representing different philosophical traditions at an upcoming meeting of the Eastern Division of the American Philosophical Association. Jude Dougherty, Joseph Kockelmans, Robert Neville, William Rowe, and Merold Westphal kindly agreed to attend that meeting. They made many substantial and helpful suggestions, and a summary of the discussions was sent to van Leusen. Some months later he wrote to inquire whether I might consider editing the series and writing the first volume, which was to provide a historical map of twentieth-century western philosophy of religion. Although I could imagine myself editing the series, I was initially reluctant to undertake the task of writing a volume that would take me across the lines of many different philosophical traditions. By coincidence, I had been asked some months earlier to contribute an essay on the philosophy of religion for a conference being held at the Catholic University of America on the general topic One Hundred Years of Philosophy.

Principles of Neurotheology Assoc Prof Andrew B Newberg, 2013-06-28. Neurotheology has garnered substantial attention in the academic and lay communities in recent years. Several books have been written addressing the relationship between the brain and religious experience, and numerous scholarly articles have been published on the topic, some in the popular press. The scientific and religious communities have been very interested in obtaining more information regarding neurotheology, how to approach this topic, and how science and religion can be integrated in some manner that preserves both. If neurotheology is to be considered a viable field going forward, it requires a set of clear principles that can be generally agreed upon and supported by both the theological or religious perspective and the scientific one as well. Principles of Neurotheology sets out the necessary principles of neurotheology, which can be used as a foundation for future neurotheological discourse. Laying the groundwork for a new synthesis of scientific and theological dialogue, this book proposes that neurotheology, a term fraught with potential problems, is a highly useful and important voice in the greater study of religious and theological ideas and their intersection with science. The New New Zealand William Edward Moneyhun, 2020-01-17. Today's New Zealand is an emerging paradigm for successful cultural relations. Although the nation's Maori, indigenous Polynesian, and Pakeha (colonial European) populations of the 19th century were dramatically different and often at odds, they are today co-contributors to a vibrant society. For more than a century, they have been working out the kind of nation that engenders respect and well-being, and their interaction, though often riddled with confrontation, is finally bearing bicultural fruit. By their model, the encounter of diverse cultures does not require the surrender of one to the other; rather, it entails each expanding its own cultural categories in the light of the other. The time is ripe to explore modern New Zealand's cultural dynamics for what we can learn about getting along. The present anthropological work focuses on religion and related symbols, forms of reciprocity, the operation of power, and the concept of culture in modern New Zealand society.
