Voting Paradoxes and Group Coherence William V. Gehrlein, Dominique Lepelley, 2010-11-11 The likelihood of observing Condorcet's Paradox is known to be very low for elections with a small number of candidates if voters preferences on candidates reflect any significant degree of a number of different measures of mutual coherence This reinforces the intuitive notion that strange election outcomes should become less likely as voters preferences become more mutually coherent Similar analysis is used here to indicate that this notion is valid for most but not all other voting paradoxes This study also focuses on the Condorcet Criterion which states that the pairwise majority rule winner should be chosen as the election winner if one exists Representations for the Condorcet Efficiency of the most common voting rules are obtained here as a function of various measures of the degree of mutual coherence of voters preferences An analysis of the Condorcet Efficiency representations that are obtained yields strong support for using Borda Rule U.S. Naval Construction

Michelle M. Taylor-Robinson,2015-11-05 Latin America s flirtation with neoliberal economic restructuring in the 1980s and 1990s the so called Washington Consensus strategy had the effect of increasing income inequality throughout the region The aim of this economic policy was in part to create the conditions for stable democracy by ensuring efficient economic use of resources both human and capital but the widening gap between rich and poor threatened to undermine political stability At the heart of the dilemma faced by these new democracies is the question of accountability Are all citizens equally capable of holding the government accountable if it does not represent their interests In this book Michelle Taylor Robinson investigates both the formal institutions of democracy such as electoral rules and the design of the legislative and executive branches and informal institutions such as the nomination procedures of political parties and patron client relationships to see what incentives legislators have to pay attention to the needs of poor people and thereby adequately represent their interests
