The Origins of Alliance Stephen M. Walt, 2013-08-09 How are alliances made In this book Stephen M Walt makes a significant contribution to this topic surveying theories of the origins of international alliances and identifying the most important causes of security cooperation between states In addition he proposes a fundamental change in the present conceptions of alliance systems Contrary to traditional balance of power theories Walt shows that states form alliances not simply to balance power but in order to balance threats Walt begins by outlining five general hypotheses about the causes of alliances Drawing upon diplomatic history and a detailed study of alliance formation in the Middle East between 1955 and 1979 he demonstrates that states are more likely to join together against threats than they are to ally themselves with threatening powers Walt also examines the impact of ideology on alliance preferences and the role of foreign aid and transnational penetration His analysis show however that these motives for alignment are relatively less important In his conclusion he examines the implications of balance of threat for U S foreign policy

Soviet Foreign Policy and Southeast Asia (Routledge Revivals) Leszek Buszynski, 2013-09-13 This book focuses on the activity of the Soviet Union in Southeast Asia and the effects of Soviet policy on the region from 1969 to the time of first publication in 1986 In particular Leszek Buszynski examines the rivalry between the Soviet Union and China Soviet presence in Vietnam and the responsive efforts of surrounding regions towards collective security U S policy in the region is a key consideration particularly in terms of American attempts to placate China and encourage Japan to assist in the defence of the region With a concluding assessment of regional trends and possible outcomes this is an important and valuable work for students and scholars with an interest in the history and politics of international diplomacy in Southeast Asia

Model Or Ally? Richard Löwenthal, 1977 An attempt to interpret Soviet and Chinese policy towards the developing countries from two angles the efforts to win imitation for their system as a model and the efforts to win support for their overall international policies from existing governments

Rethinking Theory and History in the Cold War Richard Saull, 2001 Rethinking Theory and History in the Cold War focuses on what we mean by politics and international relations and how such assumptions have come to determine our understanding of the Cold War Using an historical materialist method the author criticizes conventional conceptions of international politics that tend to focus on the agency of and relations among states and offers an alternative historical sociology of the Cold War through an analysis of the relationship between formal political authority and socio economic production Seen from this perspective the state the modern conceptions of politics can be seen as products of a capitalist modernity in which politics is based on the separation of the spheres of politics in the state and economics in civil society
