Mothers Twenty Stories Of Contemporary Motherhood:

Mothers Katrina Kenison, Kathleen Hirsch, 1996 Ciaran Carson's Last Night's Fun is a sparkling celebration of Irish music and life that is itself a literary performance of the highest order. Each chapter takes the title of a traditional tune and as in a session played by brilliant improvising musicians each tune leads into another melodies and variations weaving in and out in a haze of talk and memory. Carson's inspired jumble of recording history poetry tall tales and polemic captures the sound and vigor of a ruthlessly unsentimental music. A leading Irish poet who is also an accomplished flute player he tells of his Belfast childhood of learning to play music of his travels in Ireland and America of poteen pub life and the special pleasure taken in a well made Fry the morning after the night before. Loosely interpreted standards as Carson points out achieve a special kind of profundity and resonance a tune can never be played the same way twice so this is also a book about the poignancy of lost airs about music as a way of renegotiating lost time and recognizing mortality.
