Staging Fairyland Jennifer Schacker, 2018-12-17 Examines pantomime and theatricality in nineteenth century histories of folklore and the fairy tale. In nineteenth century Britain the spectacular and highly profitable theatrical form known as pantomime was part of a shared cultural repertoire and a significant medium for the transmission of stories. Rowdy, comedic and slightly risqué pantomime productions were situated in dynamic relationship with various forms of print and material culture. Popular fairy tale theater also informed the production and reception of folklore research in ways that are often overlooked. In Staging Fairyland: Folklore, Children's Entertainment, and Nineteenth Century Pantomime Jennifer Schacker reclaims the place of theatrical performance in this history, developing a model for the intermedial and cross disciplinary study of narrative cultures. The case studies that punctuate each chapter move between the realms of print and performance scholarship and popular culture. Schacker examines pantomime productions of such well known tales as Cinderella, Little Red Riding Hood and Jack and the Beanstalk as well as others whose popularity has waned such as Daniel O'Rourke and The Yellow Dwarf. These productions resonate with traditions of impersonation, cross dressing, literary imposture, masquerade, and the social practice of fancy dress. Schacker also traces the complex histories of Mother Goose and Mother Bunch who were often cast as the embodiments of both tale telling and stage magic and who move through various genres of narrative and forms of print culture. These examinations push at the limits of prevailing approaches to the fairy tale across media. They also demonstrate the degree to which perspectives on the fairy tale as children's entertainment often obscure the complex histories and ideological underpinnings of specific tales. Mapping the histories of tales requires a fundamental reconfiguration of our thinking about early folklore study and about fairy tales, their bearing on questions of genre and ideology, but also their signifying possibilities past, present and future. Readers interested in folklore, fairy tale studies, children's literature and performance studies will embrace this informative monograph.

Children's Services Betsy Diamant-Cohen, 2010-05-31. Diamant-Cohen, past president of the Maryland Library Association's Children's Services Division, gathers 18 examples of outreach partnerships to serve as inspiration for librarians and library administrators. Librarians from around the country describe their award winning programs including reading readiness initiatives, story times for children with speech and language delays, serving children of incarcerated parents, and teaching storytelling to youth. The ideas are grouped in sections on partnership with community organizations, law enforcement, academic institutions, children's museums, cultural institutions, and business.
