Regional Economic Development Compared: EU-Europe and the American South Collectif, 2016-09-29 Comparing economic development in a regional context both in the South of the United States and in the European Union today raises many fascinating questions How much money in the form of tax credits and subsidies should communities and states invest to attract foreign investors in the U S Should individual states and communities in the U S commit public funds in the form of tax money and tax credits etc to bring foreign businesses to their shores Is the argument of bringing jobs and more employment home the only argument that should count politically Or might these generous subsidies doled out to foreign businesses from public funds deprive local populations from improving their infrastructure and public education What if these foreign investors then locate to other shores if their investments are not profitable enough in the short run Might foreign investors come to the American South because it has never been unionized like the rest of the country Is the attraction of the non union South then only a means to get away from the burdens of stricter worker protection and social

European Socio-Economic Integration

Elias G. Carayannis, George M. Korres, 2012-12-06

Economic integration is one of the most noteworthy issues in international economic policy at the end of the twentieth century. The recent examples of the European Union (EU) and the North American Free Trade Association (NAFTA) have raised important questions about the economic integration process and the possible establishment of economic unions in other parts of the world. Against the backdrop of the financial crisis in Europe and prospects of increasing integration in Asia, this volume showcases research from an international array of researchers to provide a basic understanding of the current issues, problems, challenges, and opportunities for achieving integration, addressing both empirical and theoretical aspects of such topics as monetary union, social policy reform, and social union, public finance, and technology policy. The chapters in Part 1 are focused primarily on economic issues, while Part 2 covers social policy, the welfare state, and political reforms, with a particular emphasis on the European Union. Among the questions addressed: What are the main determinants and implications for socio-economic integration? How can economic policy influence the growth and integration process? Why is innovation important for regional economic development? What has been the policy response so far, and what lessons have we learned from it? And finally, what are our action lines for the future?

African Industrial Development and European Union Co-operation

Francis A.S.T. Matambalya, 2014-08-27

Of the 54 African states, only South Africa is categorised by the United Nations Industrial Development Organization (UNIDO) amongst industrialised countries. The economic activities in Africa are still dominated by the production and trade of agricultural and mineral commodities. This situation is in spite of the longstanding Africa-European Union (EU) co-operation, which intends among other things to support Africa's industrialisation endeavours. Imperatively, a long road to substantive levels of industrialisation still lies ahead of most African countries. This raises the question as to what role the international community could and should play in the twenty-first century to provide the support needed to expedite Africa's industrial transformation. This book argues that to supplement the initiatives of each African country, international partnerships of both a North-South and South-South nature will serve better purposes if they are leveraged to develop productive capacities in African economies. In order to enable the African countries to leverage their traditional partnership with the EU for industrialisation, a paradigm shift is obligatory. A feasible model should emulate the Japanese-led 'flying geese' model and the Chinese-led 'bamboo capitalism' model.
