Reinventing Aurobindo Ghose Bidyut Chakrabarty,2025-06-30 Aurobindo Ghose s ideological vision challenges traditional interpretations that divide his thought into distinct political and spiritual phases The common belief that his engagement in the nationalist movement 1893 1910 gave way to a retreat into spirituality in Pondicherry oversimplifies the complexity of his intellectual evolution This division often found in historiography suggests a shift from nationalism to spirituality but fails to recognise the underlying continuity in Aurobindo s ideas A closer examination reveals a seamless development that transcends such a simplistic bifurcation Aurobindo's nationalism was not solely political it was deeply connected to his reverence for India's ancient intellectual traditions He opposed the Westernisation of India seeing it as a force that disconnected Indians from their cultural heritage The blind imitation of Western values in his view betrayed India's spiritual and philosophical legacy This commitment to intellectual revival was evident throughout his early career during which he sought to navigate the colonial system even attempting to secure a position within the British administration Ultimately Aurobindo rejected this path and aligned himself with the nationalist movement Alongside leaders like Lal Bal and Pal he redefined Indian nationalism advocating for direct resistance to colonial rule and championing mass mobilisation that included all castes religions and genders His vision was not a transition from politics to spirituality but an integrated approach where nationalism and spirituality were inextricably linked in the pursuit of India's freedom and cultural renaissance

Crew,Paul R. Kleindorfer,2011-01-01 This compilation of original essays by an international cast of economists regulators and industry practitioners analyzes some of the major issues now facing postal and delivery services throughout the world as competition from information and communication technologies ICT has increased Competition has become increasingly important in the postal sector for some time in the form of alternative entrants providing mail delivery However the competition from ICT in the form of email and instant messaging the Internet Facebook and other forms of social networking and portable wireless devices such as the iPad and Kindle may be even more significant Mail volumes are falling and the economies of scale that have made possible daily deliveries to every address are being eroded This book assesses volume these declines resulting from this so called eSubstituion and looks at the ways the postal sector can adapt to the rapid changes resulting from ICT The impact of electronic invoicing on transactions mail and the impact on bulk mail of electronic forms of advertising are examined Strategies including pricing and access policies are discussed in the context of the increasing impact of ICT A rethinking of the role of mail in an electronic age is taking place and this book provides the cutting edge of this rethinking and the attempts of POs to reinvent themselves while continuing to meet the public s expectation of continuing ubiquitous daily deliveries of traditional mail products Undergraduate and postgraduate students and researchers in regulation competition law innovation and public sector economics along with institutional libraries and industry professionals will find this volume informative and useful Reinventing Babel in Medieval French Emma Campbell,2023-09-09 How can untranslatability help us to think about the historical as well as the cultural and linguistic dimensions of translation For the past two centuries theoretical debates about translation have responded to the idea that translation overcomes linguistic and cultural incommensurability while never inscribing full equivalence More recently untranslatability has been foregrounded in projects at the intersections between translation studies and other disciplines notably philosophy and comparative literature The critical turn to untranslatability re emphasizes the importance of translation s negotiation with foreignness or difference and prompts further reflection on how that might be understood historically philosophically and ethically If translation never replicates a source exactly what does it mean to communicate some elements and not others What or who determines what is translatable or what can or cannot be recontextualized What linguistic political cultural or historical factors condition such determinations Central to these questions is the way translation negotiates with and inscribes asymmetries among languages and cultures operations that are inevitably ethical and political as well as linguistic This book explores how approaching questions of translatability and untranslatability through premodern texts and languages can inform broader interdisciplinary conversations about translation as a concept and a practice Working with case studies drawn from the francophone cultures of Flanders England and northern France it explores how medieval texts challenge modern definitions of language text and translation and in so doing how such texts can open sites of variance and non identity within what later became the hegemonic global languages we know today
