Expertise, Communication, and Organizing Jeffrey W. Treem, Paul M. Leonardi, 2016 Expertise is an intriguing construct Though it is highly desired it is commonly characterized by exclusivity or being something esoteric making it both seemingly difficult to acquire and understand This opaqueness surrounding the nature of expertise in organizational contexts is coupled with greater demands for specialized work and employees increased reliance on communication technologies to complete tasks trends that further complicate the evaluation of workers knowledge and abilities This volume draws upon original works from scholars of diverse backgrounds to explore how recent changes in the structure of organizational life have altered the nature of expertise Specifically this book aims to challenge the perspective that organizational expertise exists to be recognized and utilized and offers an alternative lens that views expertise as emergent and constituted in communication among organizing actors Examining the intersection of communication and expertise within and across different contexts of organizing offers new insights into the discursive material and structural influences that contribute to an understanding of expertise This book offers a comprehensive view of organizational expertise by presenting theoretical frameworks for the study of expertise providing reviews of how the study of expertise has evolved applying perspectives on expertise to different domains of organizational practice and presenting new directions for the study of the intersection of expertise communication and organizing The result is a treatment that considers expertise in diverse forms and across a variety of contexts of organizing and in doing so provides valuable content to researchers from multiple disciplinary backgrounds

Networks and National Security Chad Whelan, 2016-04-29 Networks as sets of autonomous organisations working together to achieve individual and shared goals are becoming increasingly important across many areas of public administration. The importance of networks is well known but most analysts would agree that we do not know enough about the dynamics and effectiveness of networks in relation to their internal operations. This is a significant problem as security intelligence law enforcement and many other agencies are increasingly required to organise in and through networks to provide national security. In this comprehensive analysis Chad Whelan presents a highly innovative qualitative study of networks in the field of national security. Developing our understanding of organisational networks in organisational theory management and public administration and security networks in criminology and international relations he presents a multi disciplinary analysis of network forms of organisation. Whelan puts forward a methodological framework involving five levels of analysis structural cultural policy technological and relational with which we can better analyse and understand the dynamics and effectiveness of networks. This framework is applied to public sector networks operating in the field of counter terrorism in Australia in a way that is highly relevant to researchers and practitioners in many contexts where government departments and agencies and the private sector need to work together. Networks and National Security: Dynamics, Effectiveness and Organisation not only advances our knowledge of networks and national security but also assists with the essential tasks of evaluating and managing networks. Written in a clear and accessible style and featuring a wealth of first hand accounts concerning the inside operations of networks this book deals with the crucial subject of inter agency coordination in the important field of national security. Networks and Netwars John Arquilla, David Ronfeldt, 2001-11-05 Netwar like cyberwar describes a new spectrum of conflict that is emerging in the wake of the information revolution. Netwar includes conflicts waged on the one hand by terrorists criminals gangs and ethnic extremists and by civil society activists such as cyber activists or WTO protestors on the other. What distinguishes netwar is the networked organizational structure of its practitioners with many groups actually being leaderless and their quickness in coming together in swarming attacks. To confront this new type of conflict it is crucial for governments military and law enforcement to begin networking themselves. Managing in the Information Economy Uday
