The Course Reflection Project Nicole Schonemann,Emily Metzgar,Andrew Libby,2015-05-01 Service learning is entering a post initiatory phase At tertiary institutions of all types and sizes service learning programs are common and service learning requirements for graduation are growing in popularity Taken together alongside continued faculty interest in effective teaching these factors have raised the visibility and popularity of service learning Now the greater need in service learning is not to prove the need for or efficacy of service learning but to turn the focus squarely back on practice Following established best practice is not enough instructors also need to reflect on how this fits within the specific context and application of each unique course and service learning partnership While there are many excellent resources that detail best practice and showcase exemplary service learning courses faculty reflection and course revision often goes unmentioned In response to the lack of attention on the role of reflection and course revision we convened groups of faculty from a variety of disciplines to reflect deeply on their courses paying specific attention to obstacles and challenges These conversations were converted to articles for this edited collection each chapter representing the process of reflection and revision and serving as a guide to develop effective practice in varied curricular contexts This text contributes to the body of literature on service learning in a unique and practical manner Faculty teaching or interested in teaching service learning classes would benefit from this text as well as university administrators and community service directors involved in service learning at a programmatic and institutional level This book should be marketed to faculty teaching disciplinary service learning classes and service learning pedagogy classes and administrative offices involved in service learning This could be a supplementary text for graduate level pedagogy courses Higher education institutional libraries would benefit from this text as well as the national and state campus compact offices

COOP 2014 - Proceedings of the 11th International Conference on the Design of Cooperative Systems, 27-30 May 2014, Nice (France) Chiara Rossitto, Luigina Ciolfi, David Martin, Bernard Conein, 2014-06-02 This volume presents the proceedings of the 11th International Conference on the Design of Cooperative Systems COOP 2014. The conference is a venue for multidisciplinary research contributing to the design, assessment and analysis of cooperative systems and their integration in organizations, public venues and everyday life. COOP emerged from the European tradition of Computer Supported Cooperative Work (CSCW) and Cognitive Ergonomics as practiced in France. These proceedings are a collection of 28 papers reflecting the variety of research activities in the field as well as an increasing interest in investigating the use and design of ICT in all aspects of everyday life and society and not merely in the workplace. The papers represent a variety of research topics from healthcare to sustainable mobility to disaster response in settings from all over the world. For the first time, the proceedings include papers presented in an Early Career Researchers Track which was organized in order to give young researchers the opportunity to discuss their work with an international community. This collection of papers provides a picture of new developments and classic topics of research around cooperative systems based on the principle that a deep knowledge of cooperative practices is a key to understanding technology impacts and producing quality designs. The articles presented will appeal to researchers and practitioners alike as they combine an understanding of the nature of work with the possibilities offered by novel digital technologies.

Politically Reflective Psychotherapy Manuel Llorens, 2020-10-27 This book shows how clinical psychology has been deliberately used to label control and oppress political dissidence under oppressive regimes and presents an epistemological and theoretical framework to help psychologists deal with the political dilemmas that surround clinical practice Based on his own experience working as a clinical and community psychologist in Venezuela for almost twenty five years the author recounts the controversial history of how the Bolivarian Revolution has used psychology to persecute and oppress political dissidents recovers the experience of doing psychotherapy under oppressive regimes in other countries and stresses the importance of developing an ethically and politically aware clinical practice The first part of the book presents the dilemmas psychotherapists have faced in different parts of the world such as the former Soviet Union USA China Spain Hungary Argentina Brazil Uruguay and Venezuela when dealing with the intrusion of the political domain in clinical research and practice and the difficulties clinicians have had in dealing with these issues The second part of the book presents an epistemological and theoretical framework from which these issues may be tackled effectively The book helps raise awareness of the risks of framing psychotherapy as apolitical as well as the benefits of thinking of our lives as contextualized in our political settings It draws from several theoretical options that have been useful to challenge traditional clinical theory and include the political in our clinical comprehensions In particular Latin American Community Psychology that has developed tools to favor awareness of political issues has been used to expand the psychotherapeutic conversation Politically Reflective Psychotherapy Towards a Contextualized Approach will help clinical psychologists psychiatrists and other social and mental health workers reflect on the challenges psychotherapy faces in a politically polarized society showing how the political dimension can be incorporated into clinical practice Reflections with Lessons Ric Grubaugh, 2025-05-05 This book Reflections with Lessons A Journey through Grief could be described as two books in one. One part depicts how a person moves through his life and either grows or regresses in his attempt to find his way forward. The author reflects on many events that occur in his life as he moved from a child to a teenager to an adult and now to a senior citizen. In his reflections of these events he tries to draw a lesson: what did he learn, how did it shape his future, and was it correct or should he have used the reflection to draw a completely different lesson that would have served him better. It is hoped that these reflections and lessons are meaningful and are written concisely and occasionally with a bit of humor, sometimes third grade humor. The other half of the book does not reflect on a child playing baseball or a teenager trying to date the cheerleader or a young child lying to his mom. No, these tell of finding and losing the one, the one person who made sense of the time between the finding and the losing. This book will not find world peace or cure cancer or help you decide between Diet Pepsi or Diet Coke, but it is hoped that upon completion the reader chooses to attack the grief and not let grief or the other bears and wolves of life win.
