Sharing the Fire Luce Irigaray,2019-12-13 Whilst he broaches the theme of the difference between the sexes Hegel does not go deep enough into the question of their mutual desire as a crucial stage in our becoming truly human He ignores the dialectical process regarding sensitivity and sensuousness And yet this is needed to make spiritual the relation between two human subjectivities differently determined by nature and to ensure the connection between body and spirit nature and culture private life and public life This leads Hegel to fragment human subjectivity into yearnings for art religion and philosophy thereby losing the unity attained through the cultivation of a longing for the absolute born of a desire for one another as different Furthermore our epoch of history is different from the Hegelian one and demands that we consider additional aspects of human subjectivity This is essential if we are to overcome the nihilism inherent in our traditional metaphysics without falling into a worse nihilism due to a lack of rigorous thinking common today The increasing power of technique and technologies as well as the task of building a world culture are two other challenges we face Our sexuate belonging provides us with a universal living determination of our subjectivity now a dual subjectivity and also with a natural energy potential which allows us to use technical resources without becoming dependent on them

The Necessity of Experience Edward S. Reed,1996-01-01 Primary experience gained through the senses is our most basic way of understanding reality and learning for ourselves Our culture however favors the indirect knowledge gained from secondary experience in which information is selected modified packaged and presented to us by others In this controversial book Edward S Reed warns that secondhand experience has become so dominant in our technological workplaces schools and even homes that primary experience is endangered Reed calls for a better balance between firsthand and secondhand experience particularly in our social institutions He contends that without opportunities to learn directly we become less likely to think and feel for ourselves Since the scientific revolution of the seventeenth century Western epistemological tradition has rejected primary experience in favor of the abstractions of secondhand experience Building on James Gibson s concept of ecological psychology Reed offers a spirited defense of the reality and significance of ordinary experience against both modernist and postmodernist critics He expands on the radical critiques of work education and art begun by William Morris and John Dewey offering an alternative vision of meaningful learning that places greater emphasis on unmediated experience and he outlines the psychological cultural and intellectual conditions that will be needed to foster that crucial change
