Money And Finance In Hong Kong: Retrospect And Prospect East Asian Institute, 1998-05-13 Hong Kong's reunification with China on July 1 1997 after 156 years of British rule was a historic event of worldwide significance While the transition to Chinese sovereignty has so far been smoother than expected there are lingering doubts concerning three interrelated issues whether the Hong Kong dollar can continue to exist whether the linked exchange rate can survive and whether Hong Kong can retain its role as an international financial centre These issues are analyzed and discussed objectively in the first article of this book The second article confines itself to the workings of the currency board In addition the future of the system after Hong Kong's historic reunification with China is briefly discussed China After the Ninth National People's Congress John Wong, Yongnian Zheng, 1998 Prepared by the East Asian Institute NUS which promotes research on East Asian developments particularly the political economic and social development of contemporary China including Hong Kong and Taiwan this series of research reports is intended for policy makers and readers who want to keep abreast of the latest developments in China Contains three articles The National People's Congress and its Electoral System Interpreting Zhu Rongji's Strategies for the Chinese Economy and China's Politics After the Ninth National People's Congress Power Realignment Modernization and Chinese Entrepreneurship Siu-lun Wong, 1998 Prepared by the East Asian Institute NUS which promotes research on East Asian developments particularly the political economic and social development of contemporary China including Hong Kong and Taiwan this series of research reports is intended for policy makers and readers who want to keep abreast of the latest developments in China Contains two articles In Search of Asia's Modernity and Chinese Entrepreneurs as Cultural Heroes The International Handbook on Financial Reform Maximilian Hall, 2003-01-01 Under growing pressure from within and outside their economies countries around the world have embarked upon wide ranging programmes of financial reform This handbook provides country studies of contemporary developments in financial reform in a selection of both developed and developing countries from Western Europe North America South America Asia and Australia The outcome is an account of the contemporary world wide attempt to refashion the way in which the financial services industry and especially the banking sector is regulated and supervised Profits, Politics and Panics Leo Goodstadt, 2007-10-01 Goodstadt brilliantly weaves a tapestry that resolves major puzzles about Hong Kong's growth as an international financial centre during this pivotal fifty year period This is a devastating expose of the consequences of the British colonial government's failure to effectively regulate banking and manage monetary policy David Meyer Washington University St Louis Leo F Goodstadt is adjunct professor in the School of Business Studies at Trinity College University of Dublin He was formerly deputy editor of the Far Eastern Economic Review Currency Boards in Retrospect and Prospect Holger C. Estonia Lithuania Bulgaria and Bosnia and Herzegovina Hong Kong in China Andrew M. Marton, 1999 Prepared by the East Asian Institute NUS which promotes research on East Asian developments particularly the political economic and social development of contemporary China including Hong Kong and Taiwan this series of research reports is intended for policy makers and readers who want to keep abreast of the latest developments in China In this volume scholars from China Taiwan Singapore Indonesia Malaysia Thailand and New Zealand provide a unique array of insights into Hong Kong's transition to China since the 1 July 1997 handover from particular regional viewpoints China's Regional Economic Disparities Since 1978 Xiaowen Tian, 1999 Prepared by the East Asian Institute NUS which promotes research on East Asian developments particularly the political economic and social development of contemporary China including Hong Kong and Taiwan this series of research reports is intended for policy makers and readers who want to keep abreast of the latest developments in China This study suggests that China should accelerate economic growth of its backward interior regions by deepening market oriented reforms on the one hand and by strengthening fiscal transfers from richer to poorer regions on the other The Current State of the Chinese Communist Party in the Countryside Ignatius Wibowo, 2000 This volume discusses the changing role of the village level Chinese Communist Party secretaries in the countryside Rural reforms since 1978 especially the dismantling of the rural commune in the early 1980s have reshaped the social economic and political landscapes of rural China Economic reforms have led to gradual erosion of the power of the party secretaries reduced their income advantages and at the same time increased the complexity and difficulty of their tasks The issue of incentive has emerged for talented people to remain party secretaries The political implications according to the author are a gradual transformation of the nature of the CCP and its turning from a vanguard party to a rearguard party that manages things from the sidelines and in an ad hoc fashion The Waning of the Jiang-Zhu Coalition? John Wong, Yongnian Zheng, 2000 With mounting discontent due to widespread unemployment corruption and misgovernment the Ninth National People's Congress in March 2000 was a letdown Significant though was Premier Zhu Rongji's announcement at the Congress of the leadership's decision to go west While Zhu explained the policy shift as the government's attempt to develop the country's inland regions many are skeptical dismissing it as a camouflage for the premier's failure in the reform programmes introduced when he came to power On the international front with the US ambivalence in regard to China's WTO accession and China's apparent loss of grip on cross straits relations the future of the Jiang leadership appears to be in the balance Against this background of neiyau waihan internal disturbance and external threats will the Jiang-Zhu coalition be able to rise to the occasion and push through its many reform programmes let alone retain its hold on power China After the 2000 National People's Congress I and II address this and related questions giving an in depth analysis of recent developments and changes in the power relations among China's top leaders especially the Jiang-Zhu coalition China's Politics and Economy in 1999 Yongnian Zheng, John Wong, 2000 What the Jiang-Zemin leadership faced in 1999 can be characterized by a century old Chinese saying neiyou waihan literally internal disturbance and external threat What with the worst growth record in a decade the Falun Gong sect's siege of Zhongnanhai NATO's bombing of the Chinese embassy in Yugoslavia and Lee Teng-hui's new two state theory the Chinese leadership was under tremendous pressure throughout the year Many have wondered if that leadership could still hold its own at the turn of the century This volume provides the reader with an in depth analysis of how the Chinese leadership coped with the crises during the year Though there was fair success in managing those crises serious crises lie ahead which could significantly impact the leadership China's economic slowdown may be bottoming out but increasing Party decay a growing spiritual vacuum and volatile cross strait relations are likely to pose serious threats to the leadership

China's Economy in 1998 John Wong, 1999 Prepared by the East Asian Institute NUS which promotes research on East Asian developments particularly the political economic and social development of contemporary China including Hong Kong and Taiwan this series of research reports is intended for policy makers and readers who want to keep abreast of the latest developments in China Contains two articles China and the Asian Financial Crisis An Update and China's Economy in 1998

China's WTO Accession and the Impact on Its Large Manufacturing Enterprises Guy Shaojia Liu, 2001 The greatest success of Chinese enterprise reform has been the creation of market competition Competition has forced the state to retreat from non strategic sectors and increased private ownership in the industry This development has created ownership diversification in the Chinese industry which is in line with the leadership's 2 R Retreat and Retain enterprise reform policy The ownership diversification is a distinction of the reformed economy called a socialist economy with Chinese characteristics The backbone of the economy is the large state firms in strategic sectors largely shielded from international competition in which most of them have been coping well with the domestically competitive environment After China's entry to the WTO can these firms still maintain their market dominance once all forms of protection are dismantled Are Chinese firms ready for direct competition with their foreign rivals in the manufacturing sector Will FAW China's No 1 state owned automotive corporation be defeated on its home ground by its foreign rivals in a freely accessed market The core of these questions is about the sustainability of diversified ownership in the economy after it is integrated with the world trading system Who will dominate the Chinese industry after the WTO entry foreign or private ownership The question is addressed by applying the market structure and entry theory of industrial economics since WTO accession will basically result in change in both the market type and the market structure of the industry Based on this the study developed the market share testing theory to assess the competitiveness of dominant incumbents according to the type of market The overall finding is that most large state incumbents will survive but their survival strategy will be changed from single ownership control to mixed ownership control Thus it is expected that more joint ventures between foreign and large state owned firms will emerge in the post WTO entry economy But whether such firms will evolve into foreign controlled state owned firms is an interesting question which remains to be answered

China's Politics And Economy In 1999: Coping

With Crises John Wong, Yongnian Zheng, 2000-03-30 What the Jiang Zemin leadership faced in 1999 can be characterized by a century old Chinese saying neiyou waihuan literally internal disturbance and external threat What with the worst growth record in a decade the Falun Gong sect s siege of Zhongnanhai Nato s bombing of the Chinese embassy in Yugoslavia and Lee Teng hui s new two state theory the Chinese leadership was under tremendous pressure throughout the year Many have wondered if that leadership could still hold its own at the turn of the century This volume provides the reader with an in depth analysis of how the Chinese leadership coped with the crises during the year Though there was fair success in managing those crises serious crises lie ahead which could significantly impact the leadership China s economic slowdown may be bottoming out but increasing Party decay a growing spiritual vacuum and volatile cross strait relations are likely to pose serious threats to the leadership

Financial Crises and the Politics of Macroeconomic Adjustments Stefanie Walter, 2013-10-31 When are policy makers willing to make costly adjustments to their macroeconomic policies to mitigate balance of payments problems Which types of adjustment strategies do they choose Under what circumstances do they delay reform and when are such delays likely to result in financial crises To answer these questions this book examines how macroeconomic policy adjustments affect individual voters in financially open economies and argues that the anticipation of these distributional effects influences policy makers decisions about the timing and the type of reform Empirically the book combines analyses of cross national survey data of voters and firms policy evaluations with comparative case studies of national policy responses to the Asian financial crisis of 1997 8 and the recent global financial crisis in Eastern Europe The book shows that variation in policy makers willingness to implement reform can be traced back to differences in the vulnerability profiles of their countries electorates

China Why does the Chinese government allow village elections and what implications do they have for the democratisation of China By Tracing the history of village level governance reform Shi one of the premier authorities on electoral reforms in China tackles these fundamental questions in this volume China's Anti-drug Campaign in the Reform Era Yongming Zhou,2000 This volume deals with the re emergence of the drug problem in China in the reform era and the ways in which the authorities deal with it Riding on a sweeping victory over the nationalists the newly established communist government in the early 1950s was thorough and decisive in stamping out the drug problem that had plagued the country for centuries What made the Chinese government s effort effective then were mass campaigns and China s almost total isolation from the outside world In the reform era however with marketization and the country s increasing integration into the capitalist world economy the effectiveness of the old methods has been called into question Severe punishment of offenders has failed to curb the spread of drug trafficking and mass campaigns have aroused scant interest from the populace The much reduced efficacy of the government s anti drug efforts due to the changed macro environment implies that the drug problem in China will persist if not worsen China's Industrial Reform and Open-door Policy 1980-1997: A Case Study from Xiamen Qi Luo,2017-09-08 This title was first published in 2001 The 1980s and 1990s were not only a period in which many developing countries adopted a series of major economic policy reforms but also an era in which all socialist countries undertook varying degrees of radical reforms in their Soviet style central planning economic management systems This volume examines the performance of China s industrial reform and open door policy during the period of 1980 1997 through conducting a case study on one of its Special Economic Zones SEZs Xiamen It adopts an analytical approach examining Xiamen s performance from the perspective of three important interactions between the country s general economic reform policies and the Special Policy implemented in the SEZs between the Xiamen SEZ and the vast Chinese hinterland and between foreign especially Taiwanese direct investment and local industrial transformation Generational Differences in Political Attitudes and Political Behaviour in China Tianjian Shi,1999 Prepared by the East Asian Institute NUS which promotes research on East Asian developments particularly the political economic and social development of contemporary China including Hong Kong and Taiwan this series of research reports is intended for policy makers and readers who want to keep abreast of the latest developments in China The article provides an appraisal of the changes among different age groups that would help us understand the change in Chinese society
