Cerebral Monitoring in the Operating Room and the Intensive Care Unit Enno Freye, 2012-12-06 In spite of today s increasing body of knowledge in regard to central nervous function and or the mode of action of centrally active compounds little is done to monitor those patients which are at risk of cerebral lesions either in the OR or in the ICU Due to the inconsistency of reports regarding the application and the benefits computerized EEG and or evoked potential monitoring will bring to the clinician physicians still are reluctant to get involved with a technique which they think will have little or no effect on the outcome of a patients well being However due to the development in computer technology data acquisition and comprehension it now is possible to monitor such a viable organ as the Central Nervous System CNS on a routine base without being a specialist in neurology or electroencephalography Thus the book is intended to guide the clinician to use EEG and evoked potential monitoring in a day to day situation without going too deep into technical details As an improvement of cerebral care is needed various representative cases underline the interpretation of EEG power spectra and evoked potential changes in regard to the underlying clinical situation It is hoped that this book will serve as a guide to anyone who considers cerebral monitoring a necessity in today s patient care This may be the anesthesiologist the intensive care therapist the nurse anesthetist as well as the medical personnel in the ICU setting
